MONEY BET ON POOL

Judge Says He Has No Right to Make Legislative Enactment.

The keeper or proprietor of a gambling house is not a winner merely because he profits by the game played on his premises, according to a decision by Judge Taylor Monday morning in the case of the American Silk Co. of Chicago against George D. Schaefer, proprietor of the Grand Billiard Parlor at Sixth and Pine streets.

The American Silk Co. sued for $350 alleged to have been lost by Lewis V. Burtis in the billiard hall, Sept. 6, 7, 8 and 9 of last year. Burtis was at that time a traveling salesman for the silk concern. The suit was brought under a Missouri statute which permits a creditor to sue for money lost gambling by a debtor, the theory being that the money lost did not belong to the man who lost it.

But the suit must be brought against the winner.

The case was tried several weeks ago and was taken under advisement. In his decision in favor of Schaefer Judge Taylor says that it cannot be assumed that the legislators who used the word "winner" had never heard of the keeper, proprietor or stakeholder of a gambling establishment, and that it had been intended to make those parties liable the legislators would have included them.

A winner, according to Judge Taylor, is a man who also stands a chance of losing. He said that in the case of gambling transactions, and that it had been intended to make those parties liable the legislators would have included them.

Cross-Examines Her at Divorce Trial.

Albert and Julia Fuchs "fussed" at each other in jury family fashion in Judge McDonald's court Monday when the court granted the husband the privilege of cross-questioning Mrs. Fuchs regarding the allegations in her petition for divorce.

"What kind of hours did you use to keep?" was the husband's first question.

"What kind of hours did you keep yourself?" was the rejoinder.

"I used to have to stay out hunting for you," said the husband. "It's mighty queer you didn't use to get back until 9 or 10."

"Yes, and it's mighty queer that you didn't get in until 12 or 1," said the wife.

Judge McDonald, by several commands to the wife to answer the question, instead of arguing, brought from her the statement that she was sometimes out as late as the hours her husband named.

MAN WITH BROKEN LEG SAVES LIFE BY SWIMMING

Hurt When Crushed Between Launch and Wharf, He Fell Into River.

With his right leg broken above the knee, W. L. Walbridge, contrived by swimming to save himself from drowning in the Mississippi River Sunday afternoon.

With Martin Dosey, Walbridge had spent the afternoon on the river in a gasoline launch. At 7 p. m. they attempted to make a landing at the dock of the Mount City Rowing Club. In jumping ashore, Walbridge fell and caught his leg between the launch and the wharf, breaking it.

He fell into the water and was borne away by the current before Dosey could aid him.

After a desperate struggle Walbridge swam ashore not far from the club. He was taken to the City Hospital. He is 40 years old and lives at 2806 North Main street.

Mrs. Katie Davey Scores All Men,

Mrs. Katie Davey was awarded a divorce from Robert E. Davey by Judge McDonald Monday. The suit was not contested. She testified that her husband deserted her, and returned only once, and then to ask for money, which he didn't get. Attorney Claiborne created some levity in court when he asked:

"Now, my girl, how did you happen to marry this man?"

"Just like all the rest of the deluded things, Judge," she retorted.

Mrs. Davey said she was married Sept. 23, 1903, and that her husband left her Sept. 25, 1904.

Man Runs One Car Out of Kindness and Is Arrested
for His Pains.

General Manager McCulloch of the United Railways laughed and said he guessed he'd "have to go to jail," when he was told Monday that a warrant had been issued against him for violating the Kirkwood city ordinance in failing to run cars through the town.

"They barricaded the Missouri Pacific bridge so we could not put cars over it, and now blame us because we quit running," said Capt. McCulloch, in an aggrieved tone.

"Couldn't you run cars on each side?" was asked.

"We only had two cars on the other side, and one of those became disabled. We had no way to bring it in for repairs and could not give good service with the one remaining."

Citizens Are Angry.

Marshal Seccrest set out from Kirkwood with wrath in his heart and the warrant in his pocket, before noon. Every citizen of Kirkwood and some of St. Louis, who tried to make the trip Sunday to Meramec Highlands, is angry at the gap of a mile and a third left by the United Railways service on account of that barricaded bridge at Clay avenue.

The bridge was condemned a year ago and the old Suburban Railway obtained an injunction restraining Kirkwood from refusing to let cars run over it. The injunction expired Friday and the city officials promptly barricaded the bridge.

For a time cars were run to the bridge from St. Louis and from Meramec Highlands to Geyer avenue. This left a gap of a mile, which passengers either walked or paid from 10 cents to half a dollar to cross in wagons.

Gap Is Increased.

Sunday afternoon the gap was increased a third of a mile, cars running only from the Highlands to Patrick O'Donnell's saloon. Early Monday a United Railways official at Kirkwood told Marshal Seccrest cars would not be run from St. Louis into Kirkwood at all, but would be stopped at the Sappington road, where there is a switch.

Seccrest promptly applied for a warrant for Capt. McCulloch, which Justice Jacob, acting in his capacity as Police Judge, issued.

James Backham so sympathized with his fellow townsmen when trouble arose that he undertook to aid them, and was arrested after E. S. Worthington and Thomas May, motorman and conductor of the Meramec car, were locked up for stopping the car at Geyer road and refusing to take it to the condemned bridge for passengers waiting. After they left the car Backham ran it until the company caused his arrest.

James Odell, a passenger, was also arrested for complaining because he was compelled to walk the mile gap. When locked in the calaboose, he seized a ball and chain and smashed the windows and furniture.

Both men arrested were released on a bond.

Rev. Irion's Anniversary.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. Jacob Irion of St. Paul's Evangelical Church, Ninth street and Lafayette avenue, was celebrated Sunday night. The church was crowded and persons thronged the sidewalk to hear the musical program which was rendered by a choir of 30 singers.

PINKERTONS IN PLOT TO BRING
MINERS TO TAW

Operatives Were Instructed to Discredit Haywood at Cripple Creek.

SECRET REPORTS READ

Stenographer Identifies Letters
He Took From Denver Office.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
BOISE, Idaho, July 1.—The confidential report upon the miners' strike in Colorado in 1904, which were taken from the Pinkerton Detective Agency at Denver by Morris Friedman, were read this morning to the jury that is trying William D. Haywood upon the charge that he murdered Frank Stuenkel. Friedman was recalled to the stand when the trial was resumed, and at once identified several more documents which he took.

The prosecution interposed no objection to any of the documents and Attorney Clarence Darrow at once began reading them to the jury.

Friedman identified letters written by Detective McPartland, but the defense did not offer them in evidence, and declined even to permit counsel for the State to see them.

Detectives Were After Haywood.

The first of the detective's reports showed that an operative named A. W. Gratias handled the federation's relief funds at Globeville during the strike and that Gratias cut down the relief in order to create sentiment against Haywood. The succeeding reports dealt with the federation convention in Denver in May and June, 1904, the actions and sentiments of the miners and the proceedings of the district convention of the United Mine Workers of America in Colorado in 1903.

The first report was from Operative No. 42-A. G. Gratias.

It was dated Denver, June 23, 1904. Gratias was in charge of distributing relief to the striking miners. In his report, No. 42 said some of the men were asking if he thought the strike would be settled soon.

"I told them," he wrote, "that I heard nothing of a settlement, or anything that would indicate a settlement; that the strike would last a long time yet, and also that I believed the union would have to give up by next fall if we did not win by that time."

Told to Shut Down Relief.

"Now that the convention is over, I will again take personal charge of the relief work and will carry out the instructions I received from Mr. Cary (Pinkerton manager) about a week ago in regard to putting down the relief as much as possible so as to cause dissatisfaction and get the men against the union. I will put the blame for not giving the men more relief as much as I can on W. D. Haywood by saying that I carried out his instructions."

The next two reports read from operative No. 5 were detailed accounts of the proceedings at the Western Federation of Miners' convention, which he attended as a delegate. There was nothing out of the ordinary in the proceedings and no speeches of an inflammatory character.

Mr. Darrow next read reports from Philander P. Bailey, known as operative No. 9. They were dated from Victor, Colo., during the Cripple Creek strike. One of these letters was purely formal, detailing the proceedings of a union meeting.

Threatened to Hang Miners.

Following Bailey's reports came the report of an operative named Ralmer, in Cripple Creek. Ralmer declared under date of Sept. 9, 1903, that the miners claimed to have all the best of it.

MRS. ROSE WICKERSHAM.

but unless there was a break in the mine owners' association the operative thought their claims were doubtful.

Ralmer reported that he heard no radical talk or threats from the miners and that each miner acted as a committee of one to stop all disputes and disturbances. The soldiers and miners seemed to be growing quite friendly, and many of the soldiers expressed sympathy for the strikers.

To show that the Pinkertons invaded the coal mining fields of Colorado where the United Mine Workers of America controlled the miners, reports were read from Operative No. 38—Robert M. Smith. The convention Smith attended was opened to the public, but he reported at length as to the routine proceedings.

Mr. Darrow next read two lengthy reports from Pinkerton Operative J. N. Londoner, now assistant superintendent in the Denver office. Reports were from Victor, Colo., at the time of the Independence depot explosion, June 6, 1904. Londoner told graphically of the intense excitement pervading at this time and threats made against the Union.

"I was made a deputy as soon as I showed my face," Londoner wrote, and was told to kill any Union man or sympathizer who spoke to me."

The girl left home last Thursday morning, bareheaded, to go to a packing plant where she is employed. It was seen on the street a short time later talking to the young man. When she did not return home Thursday evening Mrs. Grover became uneasy and notified the police.

Idella has run away from home before. In 1905, she left home with Wilbert, her brother, then 9 years old, and walked to Springfield, Ill., where they were caught and returned to their home.

Idella was last seen by her mother she wore a brown skirt reaching her shoulders, and a blue waist with white embroidery. She is large for her age, and weighs 120 pounds.

A reporter was told at the Morgan street address that the young man accused was not known there.

Edward Schumann, proprietor of a saloon at Third and Locust streets, is under a doctor's care at Priest's Park, near Belleville, with a broken leg he received in trying to beat his business rival in a fat men's race.

Schumann and Walter Pinnell, proprietor of a saloon at Third and Pine streets, were the only entries in this race, and each extended invitations to his friends in advance to partake in the case of champagne, which was the prize. In nearing the goal at the end of the 50 yards Schumann slipped and his 240 pounds crashed heavily to the ground, his left leg doubling under him. Pinnell, who weighs only 210 pounds, crossed the line and won the champagne.

Idella Grover, 13 years old, is missing from her home at 212 Eighth avenue, East St. Louis, and Mrs. Margaret Grover, her mother, says she has been lured to St. Louis by a young man seen with her just before she disappeared.

Mrs. Grover says she found the young man at 1811 Morgan street Friday, and that he admitted to her he had taken Idella away from home, but said she had left him and that he did not know where she was. Mrs. Grover says she did not cause his arrest because she thought the girl might have returned home.

The girl left home last Thursday morning, bareheaded, to go to a packing plant where she is employed. It was seen on the street a short time later talking to the young man. When she did not return home Thursday evening Mrs. Grover became uneasy and notified the police.

FROM NEW YORK ON BUSINESS

Refuses to Say If He Will Go to Texas and Face Perjury Charge.

H. Clay Pierce returned to St. Louis Monday from New York in his private car, and went to his office in the Bank of Commerce Building, where he conferred with business associates.

While at Union Station he said in answer to a question that he would be in the city for 48 hours.

When asked whether he intended to go to Texas and answer the charge of perjury made in an indictment found against him at Austin, he made no definite answer.

It has been reported that Pierce was disposed to go to Texas in preference to a further prolongation of legal resistance to the efforts of officials there to extradite him.

An appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals has stayed the order of Judge Adams that Pierce be delivered into the custody of the Texas Sheriff who came here after him.

at Galesburg, Ill.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 1.—The contest over the will of Capt. Charles T. Hooker began today in Surrogate Court. At the time of his death early this year, it was found Capt. Hooker, who possessed an estate worth over $100,000, had ignored all his relatives and bequeathed his money to the United States Government, naming Theodore Roosevelt and his successors in office as executors.

Most of the real estate was left as a site for a military academy at Galesburg, Ill., with money to be used as an endowment. As soon as the will was made public the relatives began efforts to break it.

The city of Galesburg is fighting for probate of the will and Mayor George S. Shumway is here looking after the interests of that city.

Attorney-General Bonaparte has directed District Attorney Rasmussen of Buffalo to protect the interests of the Federal Government.

Went With Cowboy to Los Angeles While Husband
Was in St. Louis.

How Mrs. Rose Wickersham of St. Louis reciprocated the love-making of broncho buster Bert Daniels during long saddle dashes over alkali plains was related Monday to a Post-Dispatch reporter by C. C. Hull, railway agent at the wayside station of Chalender, Ariz., who has crossed half a continent to be the principal witness in the divorce suit of Dr. W. R. Wickersham against the horsewoman.

Hull is waiting to be called to testify in the suit, which is on the docket in Circuit Judge McDonald's court for trial today. It was a series of letters written by Hull to Wickersham, that laid the basis for the present suit. He reported to the dentist what he saw or observed of Mrs. Wickersham's life in the woolly West.

"Mrs. Wickersham came to Chalender about Sept. 8 from Los Angeles, Cal.," said Hull. "In answer to an advertisement of C. Von Achen for a housekeeper. There were no women in the place. It only had six inhabitants.

Attends Attention.

Von Achen had several children. The arrival of Mrs. Wickersham with a big wardrobe of fine clothes attracted a great deal of attention from the few men. She was a fine-looking woman and wore a few of her good clothes about until she took to riding astride with a bronco buster known there as Bert Daniels.

She was a sort of tramp buster and was working at the time for E. A. Elwood, who was a stockman near Chalender. Daniels was hired to break horses. He was a splendid rider. Mrs. Wickersham met him and after watching him ride wanted to learn to sit a horse. Daniels was ready enough to teach her.

"They didn't begin with a side saddle, because there was no side saddle in Chalender, so she started man fashion. 'Horseback riding over the prairie seemed to suit Mrs. Wickersham. She neglected her work as housekeeper until Von Achen complained of it. About Oct. 1 she and Daniels took the train for a country near about twenty miles distant and after returning to Chalender she said she and Daniels were married."

Posed As Wife.

"She told the few inhabitants that she was Mrs. Daniels. I knew of her husband, because she had told me a good deal about him and her nice home in St. Louis."

"I did not believe the story of the marriage, and besides I concluded that from what I had learned of the husband in St. Louis, he must be a pretty good sort of a fellow. So I sent a boy of mine to the county seat to look up the marriage license. He reported to me that there was no record of the marriage license."

"Then I wrote to Dr. Wickersham and told him about the way his wife was enjoying life in the West. I wrote him several letters and about twenty-five miles distant and after returning to Chalender she said she and Daniels were married."

"It was about Oct. 10 when Mrs. Wickersham or Daniels or as they person in calling themselves, Mr. and M. Daniels left Chalender for Los Angeles with a wild west show that Elwood had organized. I think Daniels was breaking horses for the show at time he met Mrs. Wickersham."

Dr. and Mrs. Wickersham made a trip from St. Louis to Portland, Ore., during the exposition in that city. He says that she became so enamored of the West that they continued their visit to Los Angeles, when he was compelled to return to St. Louis, leaving his wife to follow him later.

"My wife contracted the Western fever," said Dr. Wickersham to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Following our visit to the Portland Exposition. We went to Los Angeles, and business calling me home, she carried for a month."

Bought California Land.

"During that time she bought several lots at Venice, Cal., for which she left two diamond rings, valued at $100, as security."

"Upon her return to St. Louis, a month after my return, she complained this fact until it became apparent that having no receipt for the investment of jewelry, she was liable to lose the money."

BOY AND GIRL 16 RUN AWAY TO GET MARRIED

Refused a License They Take a Train to Either Chicago or New York.

POLICE ARE NOTIFIED

Father of Boy Declares He Robbed Safe in Store of $250 or $275.

Detectives in Chicago are looking for a St. Louis boy and girl, who eloped because their parents objected to their courtship and matrimonial intentions and had forbidden them to speak to each other.

Leaving her home at 1016 Armstrong avenue Saturday morning to do some shopping for her mother, Alice Kirl, 16 years old, of 2301 Papin street,
at Fourteenth and Market streets, accompanied him to East St. Louis, where they endeavored to get a marriage license. It was refused on account of Wolfe's youth. Then they went to Belleville, where they were again
unsuccessful in their quest.

The last heard from the young couple was that they were going to Chicago or New York, hoping that at one of those cities they could overcome the scruples of a marriage license clerk.
Their disappearance has been reported to the police, and the Chicago authorities tried to intercept the boy and girl
at the train, but did not find them.

Robb's Father's Safe.

To enable him to carry out his marriage plans, young Wolfe robbed his father's safe of between $250 and $275.
He knew the combination and helped himself between midnight and 5 a. m.
Saturday. He did not touch a collection of jewelry valued at $350. On the Friday evening previous the boy should have left for Montana, according to an arrangement he made with his father.

Frederick Kirl, the girl's father, did not dare to leave his wife Sunday or Monday. She is nervous and subject to hysterical attacks.

When Loretta went downtown Saturday at 10 a. m. she was accompanied by a chum—Grace Dempsey, 17 years old, of 1009 Thompson avenue. They were shopping Mrs. Kirl required and met Wolfe by appointment.

They proceeded immediately to East St. Louis, the Dempsey girl accompanying them to act as witness at the wedding.

Keeps the Secret.
She returned to her home at 6 p. m., but did not mention the events of the afternoon or the plans for a marriage in Chicago, until after 9 p. m., the hour at which she had been told the Chicago train would leave East St. Louis.

Monday morning Grace threw new light on the elopement and explained the failure of the Chicago detectives to find the young people on the train by saying that Wolfe had purchased the girl two new dresses and a hat in St. Louis, and when she left home she was wearing a blue suit, of which the skirt was short. The skirts Wolfe paid for were long, of black material and made Loretta look to be 19 years old.

She made affidavit at East St. Louis and Belleville that she was of age, but neither of the clerks would believe Wolfe
when he said he was 21 years old.

BRYAN'S FRIEND OUT FOR FOLK FOR PRESIDENT

Former State Treasurer Williams Says Voters Don't Want Bryan Again.

Col. R. P. Williams of Howard County, State Treasurer under Gov. Dockery and one of the stalwarts of the "Old-Guard" wing of the Missouri Democracy, believes that Gov. Folk is rapidly becoming the logical candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"We ought to select somebody whom we feel we can elect," said Col. Williams to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the Southern Hotel.

"Mr. Bryan is the ideal of all us Mis-sourians. We only regret the East can't see him as we do. When some of the boys in my county asked me about Bryan recently, I told them that people were just taking the view of him that they take of a horse race.
If a man puts up his money on a horse and that horse loses twice, why he don't care to bet on him again. Of course not. He picks another one who he thinks is as good and certainly can be no worse, with the chances that he will prove a winner.

"That's the trouble with Mr. Bryan.
He ran twice and lost. The other party staked its all on the result.

"We are looking for a better race. I think Folk fills the bill. I was not for him for Governor. I am not a particular admirer of his personality now, but I have got to give him credit for doing his duty.

"If Gov. Folk doesn't get the presidential nomination, the boys seem to think he will go after the senatorship.
That means a fight with Senator Stone,
and the fight might prove disastrous to party success in this State.

"I feel the candidates I've seen mentioned for Governor," concluded Col.
Williams, "there isn't one that appears strong enough to beat Attorney-General Hadley."

CLOSED STORES SATURDAY, BUT NOT SUNDAY; ARRESTED

East St. Louis Jewish Merchants Accused of "Lid" Violation
by the Clerks.

The Retail Clerks' Union of East St.
Louis took a hand in enforcing the "lid"
on stores in that city Sunday and caused the arrest of five Jewish merchants who they allege kept their stores open for business Sunday. Those arrested gave bond for trial and say they will fight
the case.

At the request of a committee of the Retail Merchants' Association, which had passed a resolution asking that all stores be closed Sunday, Mayor Cook put the "lid" on grocers, butchers and dry goods stores. The Jewish merchants rebelled, saying that as they closed their stores Saturday, which is their Sunday, they should be allowed to do business on Sunday.

The committee of the Clerks' union started out to make cases Sunday and wherever it found a store open it made a purchase. The goods purchased were properly marked and turned over to the police and a warrant was sworn out for the proprietor.

The following merchants were arrested and a package at the police station bears the mark of being bought at the stores: M. Felsen, 743 Collinsville avenue; Herman Horn, 400 Missouri avenue; Ben Chusid, 304 Broadway; S.
Geiger, 421 Collinsville avenue; and H.
Niederberg, 215 Collinsville avenue.

JOHNSTON AND KINNEY SETTLE

County Prosecutor and Senator Discharged on Payment of Police Court Costs.

The cases against Prosecuting Attorney Rowland Johnston of St. Louis County, State Senator Thomas E. Kinney and Arthur Deming, a vaudeville singer, arrested with three women early Friday in a raid by the morality squad,
have been dismissed in the City Hall Police Court on payment of costs.

A Post-Dispatch reporter learned
Monday that the cases were dismissed
Friday after a motion to continue them to July 2 had been entered on the docket. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney King, who made this entry, was unable to remember Friday, he said, who appeared for the defendants and asked that the case be continued. They were not in court.

Judge Tracy said Monday that after the cases had been continued, City Attorney Anderson told him there seemed to have been no serious offense and that he (Judge Tracy) agreed to dismiss the cases on payment of costs, $3
in each case.

Anderson said he went to Judge Tracy after an officer had told him the men had only been singing loudly, and that there was no other charge against them.
He said his recollection was that the officer was Sergeant Shaw, who led the raiding squad. On Shaw's statement Anderson asked Judge Tracy to let the men off with costs, he says.

Johnston, Kinney and Deming were arrested in a house where their loud singing and boisterous laughter attracted attention in the early morning hours.
They were taken to the Four Courts
with the women and released after Abe Slusky had given bond for them.

have purchased an assortment of firecrackers, chasers, and other light explosives, which will be presented to the inmates of the Industrial School for their amusement on the Fourth.

The judge and prosecutor will visit the Industrial School on the morning of the Fourth and distribute the fireworks
among the youngsters.

Mr. Maulhardt's Troubles.

Mrs. Josephine Maulhardt, who told the police, and later denied, that she had substituted a purchased baby for her own dead infant, in the effort to bring back the husband who had left her, has been released from the City Hospital. Mrs. Maulhardt says that the cause of her separation from Emil
W. Maulhardt, who later divorced her, was not, as has been stated, that she went downtown with Joseph P. Moehring. She says it was because of quarrels over other matters.

DIME A MILE ON BRIDGE IS UNLAWFUL BY 2-CENT LAWS

From St. Louis to East St.
Louis Called Interstate Traffic.

No change is to be made in the arbitrary passenger charge of 25 cents between St. Louis and East St. Louis, railroad officials contending that this is interstate traffic and not subject therefore to the Missouri and Illinois rate of 2 cents a mile.

The Illinois rate-reduction law became effective Monday. It lowers Chicago-St. Louis fares from $7.50 to $5.00. From Chicago to Cincinnati the rate drops
from $7 to $6 and from Chicago to Kansas City the reduction is $3.

The arbitrary assessment of 10 cents
a mile for crossing the Mississippi River
on a railroad train has come to stay, according to C. S. Crane, general passenger agent of the Wabash Railroad Co.
"Formerly the Terminal Association collected this rate through its own conductors, the railroads furnishing a coupon which they detached," said Mr. Crane.

Blames Providence.

"We found that system expensive and annoying, not only to passengers but to the railroad company as well. Accordingly, we abolished the Terminal conductors and paid the Terminal people a stipulated sum per car. This was based on the bridge receipts for 10 years."

"Why can't the railroads running out of St. Louis absorb the bridge charge as in the case of the Chicago & Alton crossing the Mississippi at Louisiana?"
Mr. Crane was asked.

"For the simple reason," he answered,
"that the railroads had nothing to do with the Eads Bridge. The public is under an erroneous impression as to the so-called arbitrary."

"Providence put the river there, not the railroads. Somebody had to put up the bridge to span it. The railroads were naturally compelled to pay tribute to its owners."

"While it is true the Terminal Association is composed of the railroad companies, there is a distinction between the two corporations, each having separate obligations to perform."

Cenae Raps Lawmakers.

"Do you think the railroads will suffer a loss of 33 per cent on their passenger traffic?"

"Probably it will be very great. There was no reasonable thought given to this subject in the Missouri Legislature.

"I remember going up to Jefferson City and talking the matter over with some of the legislators. A majority of those men, undoubtedly well-meaning men, were sent to the Legislature on a 2-cent fare platform and all our arguments and speeches, supplemented and beautified with an endless amount of figures, were just like chaff in the wind."

Mr. Crane was asked if the railroads would obey Attorney-General Hadley's order not to issue any more passes, except to railroad employees.

"If that is the law," answered Mr.
Crane, "the railroads will obey it. Some people profess to believe that the railroads have been carrying most of their passengers free. The fact is, not more than one and one-half per cent ride on passes."

AMERICAN WOMAN TO SPEND HER LIFE IN LEPER COLONY

Mrs. French Will Devote Remainder of Her Days to Afflicted
in Molokai Island.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
OAKLAND, Cal., July 1.—Mrs. French, wife of the Salvation Army Commandant of the Pacific Coast, has offered to go to the leper island of Molokai for mission work and has expressed a willingness to consecrate her life to the cause.

Col. and Mrs. French have five children, ranging in ages from 9 to 16 years. Col. French is in Honolulu at present on mission work connected with the Japanese and Koreans, and is also looking into arrangements for the opening of a leper mission. He shares his wife's desire to spend the remainder of his life with the lepers.

WOMEN MAKE CLEVER COUP IN SCHOOL FIGHT

Ghetto Housewives Admit
One Faction of Men,
Barring Rivals.

CLASH AT HIGH GATE

Tse Pharis Sympathizers Seek to Regain Possession of Building in Vain.

In the contest between men and women of the Ghetto for control of a four-story building at 177 Carr street, the honors are still overwhelmingly on the feminine side. By the execution of a coup Monday which divided the men's camp bitterly against itself, the women proved themselves strategists of no mean skill.

Title to the building is in the name of the Moses Montefiore Free Charity Society, of which officers and members are exclusively women. Its purpose, during the 12 years since its incorporation, has been to provide board and lodging for indigent transients. In addition, the women have permitted classes in Hebrew to be conducted in such of their rooms as were not in use.

There are two free schools in the Ghetto, both conducted by men. One is the Moses Montefiore Free School and the other the Tse Pharis Free School.
Between the two organizations, there has been keen rivalry since the Moses Montefiore School refused to unite with the Tse Pharis organization. Particularly have they clashed over permission to use the rooms of the women's organization for their classes.

Women and Husband Clash.

When the women bought their new quarters on Carr street a few days ago,
the officers of the Tse Pharis School moved in with their desks and benches without so much as by your leave. But the women, after bribing the negro jan-
their furniture into the street and held possession despite all the men could do.

Fighting between men and women ran high in the Ghetto, and the public dispute was continued at the firesties,
where also, it is rumored, the women were victorious.

Monday morning, when scouts from the Tse Pharis School began to reconnoiter the premises on Carr street to discover, if possible, some means of ousting the women, they were confounded to see streams of children enter the house with school books and desks, and the women, they learned, revealed the fact that the women had given the rival organization, the Moses Montefiore Free School, permission to hold classes in the house, and thus, at one stroke, drawn half the men of the Ghetto to their party. Enraged and dismayed, the scouts withdrew and advised that the attack on the house planned for Monday morning be called off, and that victory be conceded to the women.

Sunday morning about one hundred men and the same number of children,
descended upon the Tse Pharis School
with the intention of making an entrance and holding classes. They were met at the high iron gate, which was padded, by a negro sentry with strict instructions to permit no trespasser except with the Tse Pharis School. Justice, leader of the men, poured a torrent of reproaches in Yiddish upon the head of the black watchman. Except for a startling perturbation of the eyeballs, the sentry gave no sign that he heard.

Women and husbands Clash.

Presently he was reinforced by a squad of women from the house, who exchanged shrill recriminations for a half hour with the men, many of whom were their husbands. The fence was too high to scale, so at last the men desisted right about face and marched off in high disgust. The negro sentinel has not slept since Friday afternoon, and has not quitted for a minute
his trust at the gate.

About fifty boys were in class in the house Monday, and the high-pitched monotone in which they chanted their Hebrew lessons were borne to the angry ears of the unsuccessful besiegers
in the street.

Mrs. Dora Fleischmann, 1109 North Eleventh street, is president of the women's organization, and is seconded
by Mrs. Louis Levitt, vice-president; Mrs. Paulina Schwartzberg, secretary, and Mrs. Zella Gallant, treasurer.

HILTENBRANDS RECONCILED; DIVORCE CASE STOPPED

Lawyer Announces That the Couple Have Decided to Be Friends.

The divorce suit of Mrs. Emma Hiltenbrand of 350A Humphrey street against August H. Hiltenbrand of 262 Washington avenue and the defendant's cross-bill were withdrawn in Judge Kinsey's court Monday and the announcement made that negotiations were under way for a reconciliation between husband and wife.

Hiltenbrand is the proprietor of a restaurant. His wife's principal charge against him was that he compelled her to work in the restaurant under another woman's authority. In Hiltenbrand's cross-bill he charged that his wife made love to August West, proprietor of a barber shop at 1 North Sixth street, and that she accompanied him to places of amusement and accepted presents from him.

Since March 14 there has been pending in court a suit of Hiltenbrand against West for $20,000 damages for alienating
Mrs. Hiltenbrand's affections.

WAR PREDICTED BETWEEN JAPAN AND THIS COUNTRY

Influential German Paper Says Strife Is Certain to Come Sooner or Later Owing to Conflicting Interests.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and
New York World.
Copyright, 1907, by the Press Pub. Co.
(New York World.)

BERLIN, July 1.—One of the most influential of the German newspapers, the Hamburger Nachrichten, which is supposed to represent Bismarckian traditions and foreign policy, prints a remarkable article regarding the relations between Japan and America which is attracting much attention here. It says:
"One of the most certain eventualities
with which the future has to reckon is a war between Japan and the United States. Soon or later this will happen. The living interests of both states will compel this."
"For the present it is only a commercial and economic war. Already it is bitter enough, but no one can foretell
when ambitious Japan, so strong on sea
and land, with the choice of the initiative will break the bonds of friendship and undertake a warlike settlement with the United States."

"It must be remembered also that China is unfriendly toward America, and further that the Japanese expansion in South America is proceeding in a remarkable way, and that South America,
jealous of the United States, would gladly see in Japan an ally against Northern encroachments."

The article in the Hamburg paper proceeds to outline the progress Japan is making in South American ports and in Mexico, remarking that every step made in advance by Japan brings a military eruption closer.

In German official circles every diplomatic movement between Japan and the United States is watched with the keenest anxiety. Immediate danger is not apprehended, but the belief is almost universal that the recent treaties with Japan made by the Western European powers have the dreaded eventuality of this war in view.

JAPANESE NEWSPAPERS GET NO DISPATCHES FROM FRISCO

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
TOKIO, July 1.—The impression is growing here that the anti-Japanese feeling and demonstrations in San Francisco are due to the outcome of a deeply laid plan based upon racial hatred and the recent dispatches apparently support this impression.

The newspapers, which had special correspondents of American nationality
in San Francisco have ceased to receive news from them. No explanation was offered for the discontinuance of news dispatches but the impression here is that pressure was brought to bear upon the correspondents in San Francisco not to serve the Japanese papers.

The fear is expressed that the danger point will soon be reached, although war is not dreamed of, the mutual feelings of good will and friendship will be seriously alienated if prompt measures are not taken to allay the general indignation here against the latest discrimination in San Francisco, which,
according to Japanese contention, is a flagrant violation of treaty rights.

Apparently certain measures of retaliation are being contemplated by influential men in political and business circles. Just what action will be taken has not yet developed, but a boycott against American goods, it is believed,
will certainly be one of the steps taken.

COUNTY COURT TO GET AFTER CLUBS

Thirsty Individuals Had No Trouble Getting Beer Sunday
at Resorts.

The judges of the St. Louis County Court spent an hour Monday discussing the best means of proceeding against numerous clubs which sold liquor in the county Sunday. Quo warranto proceedings to revoke their charters would be effective, it was thought, but too slow, and the advisability of instructing Sheriff Herpel to arrest club managers for selling liquor without a license if they open next Sunday, was considered. No action was taken.

George R. Peters of Pine Lawn, whose bathub was found to be filled with bottled beer and whisky on ice, was arrested. He will be arraigned Tuesday in Clayton.

The Sheriff heard about the "clubs," but they presented a problem with which he was not prepared to wrestle.
He confessed he did not know how to proceed against them, but promised to close all if he could find a way.

Secretaries Busy.

Two secretaries were kept busy writing out admission cards for the Creve Coeur Lake Sailing Club and there were two other clubs at the lake, where the St. Louis Democratic Club was having its picnic.

There were some fractures of the lid discovered in St. Louis. In the home of Mrs. Rose Carroll at 3202 Lucky avenue the police found 60 casks of drinking and a supply of bottled beer
in the basement. She was arrested.
Tony Kavados, 1109 North Third street was so generous to sell Patrolman Reden a bottle of beer for 5 cents
and was arrested.

Get Constable, Too.

Fred Sebastian of 253 South Tenth street, a deputy constable, was arrested
when police raided the Fellowship Club at 2308 South Broadway. Police say they saw beer sold there.

"I remember the case of Bernard Don, 1400 Morgan street, is recommended by Capt. O'Malley because a crowd of men was found around an icebox in which was a case of beer."

An extensive lake soon formed, the pressure swept the dam away, inundat-

$5000 FINES FOR POLICY BOSSES

Two Men Are Paroled on Promise to Quit the Game Here.

John Chaney was fined $500 and Fred Hutchinson $300 in the Court of Criminal Correction Monday for selling policy. The fines were assessed at the rate of $1000 for each of the specific offenses
to which the men, both negroes, pleaded guilty.

John Wilson Taylor paroled the men, giving them until Sept. 1 to pay the costs and warning them that if they repeated their offense they would have to pay the fines or serve Workhouse terms.

In adopting the parole plan Judge
Taylor is placing reliance on the statement recently made in his courtroom by Attorney Howard Slesner. He declared that, because of the campaign against policy by the Post-Dispatch and because of the Court's severity, the policy business had been abandoned.

MRS. WALSH TO INVEST HERE

Court Dissolves in Kentucky the Trusteeship of Her Estate.

UNION TERMINALS SAVE ONE COMPANY $25,000 A YEAR

General Manager of Curtis Co. Shows the Advantage of St. Louis Over Chicago in Freight Transfer.

One of the clearest contributions on the question whether St. Louis should have joint railway terminals or those operated independently is furnished by the Curtis & Co. Manufacturing Co. This company, which is one of the oldest in the city, dating back to 1854, manufactures saws, sawmill machinery and castings. It has a branch house in Chicago, which is connected by a switch with the Chicago & Alton Railroad.

The main factory of the company is here in St. Louis—that is, in Greater St. Louis, the plant being just outside the city limits—a short distance north of the Suburban Garden. Like the branch in Chicago, the St. Louis concern is on only one railroad, but that road is a union railway, one that has direct connection with all other lines in the city.

"When we ship a load of freight to our branch house in Chicago, we at once send it over the Chicago & Alton road or pay extra switching and hauling charges," said J. H. Steedman, in conversation with a Post-Dispatch reporter. Mr. Steedman is vice-president and general manager of the Curtis company. He is a son of the venerable Dr. I. G. W. Steedman.

"We can ship over any other Chicago-St. Louis line to that city at the same rate," said Mr. Steedman, "but when the car reaches Chicago the similarity of treatment ceases. If the freight has been carried by the Chicago & Alton road, we pay but one switching charge, but if another line has the car, a second charge of that kind will be made, and in the case of railways whose tracks do not connect with the Chicago & Alton, one or more additional bills for switching and hauling will be presented.

Charges May Reach $12.

"These extra charges will vary from $3 to $12 per car. Now, suppose it is the other way. When a carload of freight is to be sent from our branch house to us here, all the Chicago-St. Louis roads stand on the same footing. We have a choice of lines, and no matter which road is chosen, the goods will be delivered at our works back of the Suburban Garden, not only without extra switching charges, but without any charge for switching at all, or any charge for the long haul over the bridge and around the north end of the city. "When we order a carload of cordage from Plymouth, Mass., for our Chicago house, we have it shipped to a little way over 12 miles north of Chicago and from San Jose send it by steamer to a landing near our place in the city. We do not have to pay switching charges, and the goods pass around Chicago on like way to the suburban point north of the city and are then hauled back over the lake by steamer at less expense and in less time than we could get them if they were delivered to some independent freight depot in Chicago, to be switched from there over and through several other freight yards to our place."

Delay Very Costly.

Mr. Steedman appreciates the efforts now being made by the merchants and manufacturers of Chicago to obtain joint railway terminals for their business. In telling of the Curtis Co. roundabout way to get its cordage into Chicago, he said it was done partly to avoid the switching holdup and partly to save the delay.

Some of this delay is caused by the car inspections. When a car passes from the keeping of one railroad company to that of another, the latter becomes responsible for it, as well as for the goods inside, and insists on giving the car a thorough inspection before receiving it. This inspection may be delayed, from one cause or another, a day or two and the more inspections, the greater the delay.

Mr. Steedman says that all cars received at the Curtis works from outside points are consigned to the Terminal Railway Association, and that he seldom has to wait more than twelve or fourteen hours for the car after it reaches Greater St. Louis, which includes East St. Louis.

When the goods are in less than carload lots they are sent to one of the Terminal companies, freight depots on this side of the river. He has an arrangement with the company by which these consignments are sent to him from the depot twice every week—Mondays and Thursdays—and the deliveries are to be increased soon to three times a week.

Has Regular Parcel Car.

When he receives a car of such freight he may find in it goods from a dozen different states, as well as an assortment from various firms in the city. The St. Louis houses with which he does business know the days on which a Terminal company makes up the Curtis parcel car and deliver whatever they have for the company to the railway.

Mr. Steedman says the loading is done, not by the shippers, but by the Terminal, and that no charge is made to the shippers or the receiver. The local business is done free and the switching charges for the out-of-town goods are absorbed in the through freight rates.

When the Curtis company ships goods, the case is somewhat different. The freight local hauling and switching charges apply only to goods shipped out of the city, but they apply to less-than-carload-lots as well as to full cars. Mr. Steedman says that in filling orders he turns all the goods over to the Terminal company to be sent to their different destinations, and that the company makes no charge for the switching or the local haul. He deals with but the one company, and holds it responsible for the goods in good condition. The Terminal company charges $3 a car for hauling and switching and $1.20 for car rental. The switching price is the same as that charged by the other railways here, says Mr. Steedman, but the rental is less, the independent lines here charging $3 per car, the same as those in Chicago.

Terminal Charges Low Rental.

The only switching charges paid by the Curtis company are on local business, and they are on shipments alone, not receipts. The Terminal company charges $3 a car for hauling and switching and $1.20 for car rental. The switching price is the same as that charged by the other railways here, says Mr. Steedman, but the rental is less, the independent lines here charging $3 per car, the same as those in Chicago.

Terminal Saves Him Money.

Mr. Steedman cites his business with the Evans and Howard Fire Brick Co. to show the advantage of joint railway terminals. Before the Terminal's transfer of freight by the Chicago & Alton road, the Curtis company had to pay 20 cents a ton for its freight, but now it does not pay a cent.

Mr. Steedman has had experience in transferring freight by rail. It was only two years ago that the Curtis industry was moved from its old location on Washington avenue and Twenty-second street. When it engaged a transfer company to haul freight to or from a railroad yard from 3 to 5 cents per 100 pounds, or from, say, $12 to $25 a carload, according to the contract rate and the capacity of the car.

Saved $25,000 a Year.

This was what he called the wholesale price. The cost of hauling parcel lots for a merchant would, of course, be much greater comparatively than the charge for full carloads. As the Curtis company's business last year amounted to over 2000 car loads, the change in cost would mean a saving of $25,000 that year in hauling charges alone.

Mr. Steedman says he has a dollar invested in the Terminal Railway and that he is not under any greater obligation to it than to any other St. Louis business which has been benefited by its service. He frankly admitted that much of the increase in the Curtis company's business—which has doubled, having grown to $800,000 a year—has been due to the saving of time and money in the transportation of the company's freight.

A daring production, "Zaza," in which Ethel Fuller is at her best this season, as she was last, in the bill at West End Heights this week. Two big audiences saw the initial performances Sunday and came away well pleased.

The emotional Fuller takes the leading role like a cyclone and plays the Leslie Carter part to a splendid, capably supported by her company. Frank De La Rue as Bernard Dufrene, who turns Zaza into his life and breaks her heart by deserting, and Sarah Sumner, as Zaza's aunt, render her best support, followed closely by Ogden Crane as Cascard and Muriel Star as Madame Dufrene.

Alice Donovan's works as Floriano, Zaza's optimistic rival, is to her standard and Tootie Marks, Louis' favorite juvenile, is pleasant in the child role of Toto, Dufrene's little daughter, who wins Zaza over and prevents her from revealing Dufrene's duplicity to his wife.

"Belle of New York" Three-Ply Symphony —Young, West and Clark in Conjunction, Seen by a Post-Dispatch Cartoonist

REVIEWS OF THE THEATRE

IF the humorous Mr. Young, leading comedian of the Deimar Opera Company, hasn't cast a "cunjer" love-spell over the summer playgoers of St. Louis, then I have forgotten all the signs of black magic taught me by African soothsayers when I was a boy down South.

Anyhow, in the comparatively minor and inconsequential role of Karl Von Pumpernick, the polite lunatic of "The Belle of New York," at Lillmar last night, Young was the real "Follow Me" star of the production. Caecilia Rhoda, who played Violet Gray and sang the "Follow" song, the big audience fairly hung on his entrances and exits, plainly holding him in the spotlight of their mind's eye all the time.

An Astonishing "Young Demonstration."

At one point in the second act, when he went off the stage without having been required by the play's story to do anything in particular, the house gave him four of the most remarkable endoroes I have ever witnessed, insisting that he come back time and again, and being satisfied finally only by his singing a nonsensical sort of impromptu "war song," save his "Is it to fill orders on the same day from points on several railroads, he has taken the goods to one depot, the work would soon be done and at little expense, but without such a central depot he would have to hire other teams and drivers or make several trips with his own and not be able to fill all his orders on time."

Mr. Steedman has had experience in transferring freight by rail. It was only two years ago that the Curtis industry was moved from its old location on Washington avenue and Twenty-second street. BIG DREDGER COST $316,000, READY FOR TEST

The B. M. Harrod, Tied Up in the River, Resembles a Modern Warship.

BOUND FOR MEMPHIS

There She Will Be Put Through a Series of Final Trials for Government.

Looking like a battleship, the new dredgeboat B. M. Harrod of the Mississippi River Commission is tied up near the foot of Russell avenue.

Its pontoon piping is attached to the front and sides of the craft in such a way that the pipes look like huge guns. They point directly at a small shack on the river bank, which is the headquarters of the "High Rollers Social Club," and members of that organization became nervous Sunday when the warlike craft took its position near by.

But the B. M. Harrod is only a sand digger. It's a high-priced one, however, costing Uncle Sam the tidy sum of $316,000. It has just been completed at the yards of the Springfield Boiler and Manufacturing Co. at Grafton, Ill., and is being taken to Memphis to undergo final tests before being turned over to its builders. It carries a crew of 52.

Is of Latest Type.

The B. M. Harrod is described as being the latest improved type of hydraulic dredgeboat. The plans and specifications for its construction were made by Capt. Lukash and Engineer Middleton of the Mississippi River Commission. Barney Meyers, general superintendent of the Springfield company, now in charge of the boat, says the commission has a few other hydraulic dredges now at work, but none so large or thoroughly equipped as this craft.

Different From Old Ones.

The ordinary dredge with which occasional visitors to the river are familiar is what Meyers and Engineer Patterson of the B. M. Harrod call a "clam shell," or "orange peel" dredge. These are fitted with two buckets, which are forced down into the water and open, respectively, like a clam or an orange, and, after fastening about a wad of sand, close again and come to the surface.

With the hydraulic dredges the system is different. The dredging apparatus is the bow of the boat. The machinery in the boat is such that this dredging apparatus may be lowered to any depth down to 20 feet whenever it is desired to clean up sand at the river bottom.

It consists of three pipes about fifteen feet in diameter, the outer two six feet from the middle pipe. Each is connected with the front of the dredging apparatus. Through the center pipe water is forced from the boat into the sand to stir and loosen it, while the sand is pumped up through the other two pipes.

Pipes in Three Sections.

When the dredge is in operation, the B. M. Harrod loses the warlike appearance it now has. At present the 500 feet of pipe it has is unbuckled into three sections. They are moored in front of the boat, after the fashion of the dredge in operation. One pipe projects 100 feet directly in front of the boat, the other two have their heads even with the head of the center pipe, but their tails extend far down either side of the boat.

This heavy piping, which is 36 inches in diameter, is supported on top of the water by 10 pontoons. They are 28 feet in diameter and, like the piping, are painted red, which emphasizes its warlike appearance.

When this piping is put in action, however, it is all hitched together into a 500-foot pipe and is attached to the stern of the boat.

Carries the Sand Also.

Then it is used to carry the sand which is drawn up through the dredging apparatus to the nearest shore. The piping has flexible joints, which permit it to be turned directly at either bank of the river, even when the dredge is operating in midstream.

The B. M. Harrod's "spud-stick" is a piece of wood—Oregon fir, they say—28 inches square and 37 feet long, weighing 4200 pounds. At present it reclines on the dredging apparatus in front of the ship. Its object is to serve as a substitute for an anchor.

This "stick" is fitted in a hole through the decks and hull of the B. M. Harrod and holds it by sticking its sharpened end into the muddy bottom of the river. It is too heavy to pull into position, so it will be dropped into position from the bridge at Memphis, through the top of the boat.

The B. M. Harrod is 228 feet long, with 40-foot beam. The "outiggers" are 15 feet long.

A Bad Habit

and a Good Remedy

Many women have a bad habit of using carbolic acid or chlorides as a disinfectant about the house, in spite of the fact that both of them are dangerous poisons and are liable to cause the death of any one of the family who might be careless.

Instead of using either of these, an excellent disinfectant and one that is non-poisonous is C. N. Disinfectant. As it is just as strong yet absolutely harmless, it can be used for many different things in the home, and is economical as well.

GIVE THE BABIES A GOOD CHANCE

Poor Food Makes Criminal, Insane and Crippled Men and Women, Says Dr. Shackland—Pure Milk Will Save Hundreds.

"START the babies right; give them a fair chance; nature will do the rest," says Dr. J. Wilbert Shackland, assistant superintendent of the City Hospital. "People would be surprised if they knew how many cases of criminality and insanity are the result of improper care and feeding during infancy. Take, for instance, a child that is fed on milk lacking the requisite amount of salts and bone-forming material. This results in bow legs, and is the cause of rickets. A weak or diseased condition of the bones acts on the nervous system and eventually on the mentality. It causes abnormally shaped heads, and, according to the phrenologist, results in a low degree of mentality. Poor or improper nourishment in infancy is bound to affect the victim both physically and mentally in after life."

"There is no question about it, the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund is accomplishing a great purpose. Start the babies right—give them a fair chance—nature will do the rest."

Does this convince you of the importance and the great need of this work? Give the babies a chance—that is what we are trying to do, and what we want you to help us do. Will you?

If you could see for yourself, the poor little helpless creatures, their faces pale and drawn, their little emaciated forms—the bones protruding almost through the skin—the little lips purple with fever, the eyes dull with suffering—if you could see all this, kind-hearted people of St. Louis, you would open your purses wide, and give generously, out of the goodness of your heart.

It is hard to realize, in the midst of your plenty, that babies are starving within so short a distance from you, but such is actually the case. If you want proof, listen to this.

Mrs. Bergman, 2244 Howard, has twin boys, Augustus and Edward, 3 months old. To use her own words:

"Gustus was weak from the time he was born, though I thought he would get stronger as he grew older. Finally

Edward became sickly, too, and I became frightened and took them to a doctor. He told me that they were starving, even though I was nursing them, and that, unless I did something for them at once, Gustus, if not both of them, would die. Imagine my grief and horror. I was so frightened I would have done anything he had told me, to save my boys.

"He said all I needed to do was to give them pure, clean milk. He filled out an order for me, giving the formula to be used, and told me to present it to the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. I did so, and have since that time, about three weeks ago, been feeding them on the pure milk. I started in giving Gustus two ounces at a time, but he is strong enough now to take four ounces, and is gaining flesh every day. I tell you, I am relieved and thankful. I have three girls, the oldest one being 7 years old, but these are our only boys, and I am so proud of them, and so anxious for them to grow up to be strong, good men."

Isn't that what they all wish, these fond mothers? Isn't that what you hope for your own big, lusty boy? Aren't you going to give the tenement babies a chance, too? Wake up to this opportunity to do good, before it is too late. The hottest months are upon us—the months that mean death to the babies. They haven't the fresh air and good surroundings that your babies have, these poor little tenement babies—let us give them, at least, the benefit of pure, clean food.

All this means money, which you must give. The milk, its pasteurization and modification, its distribution and ice—all cost money, which you must give. This charity is being conducted on the faith that you will give money, a dime, a dollar or a thousand dollars, as you can afford. Hurry! The need is pressing.

DID YOU NOTICE JUNE WAS COOL?

Weather Bureau Records Show Temperature Was Away Below the Normal.

Summer resort weather prevailed in St. Louis throughout the month of June. Only twice within the 30 years' history of the local Weather Bureau have cooler Junes occurred in St. Louis. The average temperature for the month was 71.2. This is 3.9 degrees below the normal temperature, which is 75.1.

The temperature for June, 1907, was 70.4, and for 1893 it was 73.6. The hottest June on record in St. Louis was in 1901, when the average temperature was 80.6, or 5.5 degrees above the normal. The highest temperature ever recorded in June in St. Louis was on the 29th, in 1902, when the official reading was 92. The coolest day on record was June 6, 1894, when the temperature was 64.

Throughout the country June has been below the normal on every day of the month with the exception of June 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 24. With the cool weather at home St. Louisans found it unnecessary to hasten to the seashore or lake resorts to spend their vacations. The indications are somewhat favorable for cooler than normal weather during the rest of the summer season, but the Weather Bureau will not undertake to hazard a guess as to what will happen. Taking the records of the past months as a criterion, however, it is the opinion of the weather experts that there is no much sweeter weather in store for St. Louisans.

LEOPOLD GETS DIVORCE FROM "SUN BATH" FRAU

Archduke, Who Married an Actress, Objected to the Soapless Plan.

WORE FEW CLOTHES

He Joined Her at First, but the Ninth Degree Was Too Much for Him.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 1.—Herr Voelting, who four years ago renounced his title as Archduke Leopold Ferdinand of Austria to wed an actress, has obtained a decree of absolute divorce.

The domestic troubles between Herr Voelting and his wife, who was formerly Wilhelmina Adamovics, an Austrian music hall artist, began when she joined the "Simple Life" colony at Ascona, Switzerland, became a vegetarian, discarded her handsome gowns for a single garment called a "jibbah," and became a devotee of the "sun baths."

At first Herr Voelting vowed that he was in sympathy with the "Bourgeois" life, but his aristocratic bringing up had prejudiced him in favor of the use of soap and water, at least in suitable quantities and at reasonably frequent times. That, among other things, was why he left the woman for whom he renounced his title and prospects and assumed the name of "Herr Voelting," with the consent of the head of his family, Emperor Francis Joseph.

The couple settled in Switzerland, and in course of time Frau Voelting became a strict vegetarian, and her ardently reared husband was content to go as far as that with her, renouncing reason knows how many favorite meat dishes for love's sake. He even let his hair and beard grow long to please his wife and to conform to the ways of the simple-livers.

Very Close to Altogether.

But Frau Voelting took nine degrees in the cult of the Ascona Ascetics. She discarded the pretty gowns, which Leopold was able and willing to buy her out of the $10,000 a year the Emperor allows him. The fair one for whom he had renounced his high station went around on public highways in the nondescript "jibbah," discarded stockings and wore sandals. She wore no hat, took sun baths in very close to the "altogether," and wouldn't keep a hired girl. Moreover, she took a dislike to bathing in water.

Her husband's remonstrances caused bitter quarrels. Finally he left her to her cave-dweller notions and went to Zurich to study chemistry, and applied sciences in the university. His suit for divorce soon followed.

"Herr Voelting" left his wife in undisputed possession of the villa on the Lake of Zug, where they had lived since their marriage.

Leopold has invented an instrument for measuring the force of the wind and said to be contemplating a trip to the United States to patent the device and introduce it to meteorologists and navigators there.

They Fled With Giron.

When Leopold and Mile. Adamovics fled from Dresden, accompanying his sister—the Crown Princess of Saxony, who eloped with her children's tutor, Andre Giron—Mile. Adamovics, to the Post-Dispatch's correspondent, who interviewed all four at Territet, seemed to be the only sane person in the party. Archduke Leopold appeared to be mad, the Crown Princess to be madder, and Giron, under the nervous strain of a person who had scandalized the courts of Saxony and Austria, to be in the extreme stages of mental irresponsibility.

The Archduke Leopold comes of an eccentric family. His uncle, the Archduke Johann Salvator, had a most remarkable history, probably the most remarkable among royalty in Europe, of his kind. Johann, who was quite as eccentric as his nephew has proven himself, suddenly assumed a violent distaste for court life, his pomp and his trappings. One day he disappeared. He turned up in New York, where, 12 years ago, he married Ludmilla Strubel, the sister of a Casino chorus girl.

Then the Archduke, who had renounced his title and assumed the name of John Orth, chartered the Santa Martha and sailed to the South Seas. The vessel was reported wrecked near Cape Horn, and the Archduke has never been definitely heard of since, although word of his being here or there in South America has floated north from time to time. His disappearance has become one of the mysteries never solved.

"OLD MAIDS" IN CLUB ENSNARED BY CUPID

Marriage of One Reveals Wedding Plans of Membership of "Man Haters" Organization in Chicago Church.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 1.—The Old Maids' Club, an organization of Christian Endeavor Society workers connected with the North Side Christian Church, Montana and Sheffield avenues, has been disrupted by the marriage Saturday night of the church pianist, Miss Josephine Brenda Bentley of 183 Orchard street, to Louis A. Berge, a real estate man of Lincoln, Neb.

The announcement of her engagement at first caused consternation in the ranks of these supposed "men haters."

Developments indicated that nearly all had been violating their "pledge against matrimony" and were simply waiting for the other girl to take the lead and announce her engagement.

It is now freely admitted that all except one are busily planning their own weddings.

It was five years ago when the present Mrs. Berge began playing the piano and decided to remain single. She talked it over with other girls in the society and they readily agreed with the scheme to "abstain from marriage," and a permanent organization was formed.

The six girls met once a week and sewed for charity and themselves.

FARMER SHOT TWO BULLETS INTO BREAST

He First Tested Rope as If Intending to Hang Himself.

NO REASON ASSIGNED

Young Wife Admits Quarrels, but Says They Were Trivial.

No cause has been officially learned for the suicide of Roland Fulewider, a wealthy farmer at Burdettville, 20 miles northwest of Cape Girardeau, and residents of the village are mystified by the act. A coroner's jury, after a three-hour inquest, was unable to throw any light on it.

Fulewider shot himself three times Saturday in the hayloft of a barn near his home. Two of the bullets entered his breast, and either would have been fatal. The third penetrated his left arm near the elbow, and was probably the last.

Fulewider's young wife, wealthy in her own right when she married him, three years ago, declared she is unable to understand why he ended his life.

Saturday morning, Fulewider told Samuel Note, a neighbor, that he wanted a revolver to kill rats, and borrowed Note's. Just before noon Earl Bowman, the 11-year-old son of James Bowman, whose home adjoins Fulewider's home, found Fulewider in the barn, testing the strength of a rope hanging from the "hay fork." When the boy asked why he was doing this, Fulewider replied that he wanted to fix a rope like that in his barn.

Shot Himself in Barn.

Earl still lingered curiously, and Fulewider gave him a dime to leave the barn. The boy had gone only a short distance when he heard a sharp report, then two muffled explosions. Pigeons flew in fright from the barn, and Earl thought Fulewider had shot at them.

Earl's father found the body an hour later. The revolver was still clasped in Fulewider's right hand. It had been pressed so firmly against his breast after the first bad shot that the sound of the explosion had been deadened, and the body was deeply powder turned.

At the inquest Saturday evening it was learned that Fulewider had suffered financial reverses during the past year, but his rich farm near Burdettville was still unencumbered and his business difficulties did not seem sufficient to the jury Coroner Schoen implored to explain the act.

Mrs. Fulewider admitted that there had been quarrels between herself and her husband, but did not say what they were about. She declared that they were trivial, and that she did not believe they caused the suicide.

Note Bowman, Earl Bowman and half a dozen persons who had seen Fulewider Saturday before his death were questioned closely as to his demeanor and as to whether he had dropped any hint of his intention, but could tell nothing to help clear the mystery. Fulewider acted as usual while borrowing the revolver, and stopped at a store on his way home to chat idly.

Fulewider was 35 years old. Mrs. Fulewider was Miss Roxie Allen, daughter of a well-to-do farmer near Burdettville.

PICNICKERS RUN FROM A HOUND

Policeman Kills Dog After Chase on Horseback.

Patrolman Jeremiah McGrath pursued a mad dog racing through Waterworks Park Sunday morning snarling and snapping at persons, and on a nearby farm shot the dog, killing it.

The appearance of the dog in the park at 10 a. m., with froth at the mouth, was a signal for hundreds of persons in the park to scurry for the woods surrounding it.

The dog belonged to Louis Dillman of 1001 Columbia Bottom road. It has been chained for several days, but Sunday morning some person released the animal. It was a giant hound, commonly called a "coon" hound.

Policeman McGrath Impressed a horse during the latter part of his chase and was riding fast when he fired the fatal shot.

METHUSELAHS AND OSLERITES ON THE DIAMOND

No One Knows Yet Which Side of Ancient and Honorables Won Game.

DOG GETS ONE BALL

Another Knocked Into the Reservoir and There Are Several Near Accidents.

When George Evans of 1125 Newhouse avenue, who "used to play ball forty years ago," declared that the game had deteriorated in these later days, his friend George (Dick) Elmore, also a star of former days, supported the assertion. The conversation took place behind swinging green doors and it was the interest of a dozen other old timers who were there. Each had his particular reminiscence of the "good old days when we played the game and when baseball was baseball." It was just then that Evans brought down his fist on a table.

"And I could do today—play just as good ball today as I did then," he declared. His words awakened enthusiasm and put new life in each of his listeners who suddenly became young again. Some one said: "Let's do it," and they did.

The game was played Sunday morning on the old diamond under the west approach of the Terminal bridge at Waterworks Park.

Teams Are Named.

In the excitement attending the preparations for the game, which the players were chosen, the age limit was 40,
the teams were not named. When Charles (Hiram) Sigrist, who was to umpire and keep score, called attention to this oversight, the team captaincy fell to Henry J. Cunningham, who then called the Methuselahs and the Oslerites
in charge of Evans took the names of the Oslerites.

The game was called shortly before

Sanipure Milk

are all you need, mother, to make baby's diet as near as an artificial food
can be to mother's milk.

Sanipure Milk provides all the ingredients in correct proportions. It is healthy cow's milk with excess of casein removed and so modified that analysis shows it to be more nearly like mother's milk than any substitute
nature and science have yet produced.

The quantity is regulated by the amount of Sanipure Milk and boiled water combined for each feeding. Our booklet directs you just how to prepare baby's food, according to age, etc.
Avoid the risk of changing diet; you can have baby's food right under all circumstances if you use Sanipure Milk—the food that makes muscle, bone, brain and strength, as well as fat.

5000 Sample Pieces of High-Grade Undermuslins

Now Selling at 60 Cents on the Dollar

All the samples carried by the roadmen of the Katz Underwear Co. of New York (a concern noted for the high-class garments they produce) were bought by us at 60 cents on the dollar, and will be placed on sale Monday at the basis of the purchase price.

BEING samples, the garments were made with special care, and, of course, embrace all styles handled by this concern. While a few of the garments are not as fresh looking as they might be, the collection as a whole is in excellent condition, and they are worth full price to you.

They are made of fine quality nainsook, cambric and muslin; effectively trimmed with Val., torchon lace, blind and English eyelet embroidery insertion and ruffles; some with clusters of hemstitched tucks and beading. The styles are the very best—all of the garments cut amply full and wide. The low prices in effect should be a strong inducement to purchase liberal supplies of Undermuslins.

10 o'clock, with the Methuselahs at the bat, and Evans, who will soon be 50, in the box. Charles Dudley, who dismissed the matter of his age, modestly saying he was "past 50," went to the bat. The umpire said, "Play ball!" Evans took a hitch at the garment which most needed it, advanced his left foot, with his right hand upraised and, after a glance about the field and at the expectant team, delivered the ball. There was a howl from the side lines and one of the substitute players limped out on the field. The umpire called "Foul ball," and then, learning that it was a substitute of the Methuselahs that had been hit, advanced the batter to first base.

Hits the Runner Next.
Henry Cunningham then went to the bat. Evans took the position in the box. He was poised for the throw when Dudley on first started to run. Swiftly he swung about and taking a few steps, hurled the ball. It caught Dudley between the shoulder blades and unexpectedly he began to slide for second. Cunningham dropped his bat and began to run for first. The umpire seized the ball and hurled it at William Hollats on third, who ran over and tagged both runners.

Evans then pitched the ball to John Hutchinson, who was catching. Before the second delivery, William Heldbreder was at bat. Heldbreder hit the ball out toward left field, where somebody's yellow dog was playing, and the dog ran away with the ball. When the umpire found out that the dog was owned by a member of the Methuselahs, he called the dog out. They sent a boy for another ball for the second half of the first inning. Dudley pitched for the Methuselahs and C. Lindquist was the other half of the battery. Dudley's delivery was good, but soon the Oslerites complained to the umpire.

Three Get Bases.
They said it took too long to look for the ball, and also they said they wanted a chance to hit it. Three were sent to the bases on balls when Evans went to the bat. Dudley extemporized a new form of spitball which sped toward the batter. Evans advanced to meet it, started back and then swung viciously. He hit the ball and it sailed skyward, farther and farther, and disappeared over a fence at the top of an embankment.

The players heard a splash and they knew the ball had gone into the reservoir 150 yards away. It was a home run and four runs were scored. The next three batters were put out in various commonplace ways.

As the game progressed the players grew more timber and agile. Some of a young generation gathered at the side lines and while they gleaned knowledge of the game "as it used to be," narrowly escaped disaster.

After an hour's play somebody asked what inning it was and the game was stopped to look for the small boy to whom the umpire had given the score book. The Methuselahs claim the game, so do the Oslerites. Here is the line-up as they started to play.

Line-Up of Clubs.

Methuselahs—E. S. Boyd 2b, Dave Moore ss, William Heldbreder 3b, T. J. Sullivan 1b, C. Allison if, E. Allison cf, C. Lindquist c, Henry J. Cunningham rf, and Charles Dudley p.

MAN HIT BY AUTO TAKES $2 FOR THE DAMAGE DONE

He Stops the Car Under Threat and Gets All That He Asks for Injuries.

Pat Kilkenny, 45 years old, who, while on his way from the south to the north side of Pine street at Twenty-first Sunday night, was hit by a big red touring car and tossed into the middle of the street. He arose with his clothes almost torn off and a number of bruises. "You rascals!" he shouted to the four young men who occupied the car. "Stop or I'll shoot. Just see what you've done to me and my clothes!"

"You have ripped my best coat to rags," howled the injured one.

"One leg of my trousers is gone and I'm bruised from head to foot. You've got to pay me or I'll sue you."

"Of course, we're sorry and will do anything for you in reason," said the owner of the car. How much do you think the damage is worth?"

"Worth," cried Pat, "it's worth enough, I'll tell you right now. If you don't hand me over $2 on the spot I'll have you arrested."

The owner couldn't find $2 in his pocket quickly enough. Pat received it with smiles and remarked: "Sure, you are fine gentlemen."

SOCIETY

NEWS OF THE DAY

Johns-Clark.
The announcement of the marriage of Miss Glendy Johns and Mr. Hinman Clark Jr. in Colorado Springs Wednesday, June 28, was received by St. Louis friends Sunday.

Mrs. Clark is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. D. Johns. Mr. Clark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hinman Clark. The engagement was announced in the early spring and the wedding was to have been an early autumn one but the young people anticipated the event by the marriage last week. Mrs. Clark has been in Colorado for the past month. Mr. Clark is manager of the Skelton ranch at Woodland Park, Colo., near Colorado Springs. Mrs. Skelton and a number of friends witnessed the ceremony.

Mooney-Quinlan.
A pretty wedding of Wednesday was that of Miss Estelle M. Mooney and Mr. J. F. Quinlan of Chicago at St. Leo's Church. The Rev. Father Gavin officiated. The attendants were Mr. S. L. Wimer, as best man, and Miss Mar-aret L. Moran as maid of honor. A delightful breakfast was served to a number of friends and relatives at the home of the bride's sister, 1387 Aubert avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan departed at noon for an extensive honeymoon trip to the Great Lakes and Canada. They will make their home in Chicago.

Miller-Mueller.
Wednesday evening, June 26, the marriage of Miss Cora Mueller and Mr. Herman Miller took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. W. Mueller of Carondelet. Rev. Mr. Gaus conducted the ceremony.

The wedding was a most impressive affair. The bride wore a gown of green and white tulle. She was accompanied by her bridesmaid, Miss Edna Miller, who wore a gown of white and pink. The groom wore a tuxedo. The ceremony was held at 7:30 o'clock. The wedding supper was served at 8:30 o'clock. The bride and groom were accompanied by their parents and bridesmaid to the church.

Annual Hay Ride.
The Virginia Athletic Club will give their annual hayride Wednesday evening, July 3, from the club house, 6218 Michigan avenue at 7:30 o'clock, starting their ride out the Gravois Road. The evening will be spent in dancing, after which supper will be served.

Base Ball Audiences.
Saturday afternoon's ball game audience at the St. Louis-Chicago game was one of the largest and most fashionable of the season. Every box was filled and pretty light-colored costumes and hats were much in evidence.

Only a very few party hats were given by Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Hickey, who returned from their Eastern wedding trip only a few days ago. The bride wore a princess gown of soft summer gauze, in a shade of golden brown, with large brown hat plumes in the same tint, and touched with pale blue. With them were Miss Edna Miller, who wore pink, and Miss Nellie Anheuser, who was in a white linen and heavy lace costume. All three young women carried handsome parasols hand embroidered and inserted with lace.

Miss Juliet Sharpe, wearing rose pink mull with a large white hat decorated with roses, came with friends and occupied a box.

Mrs. Thomas Edward Price gave a box party, her guests being several women friends, among them Mrs. Edith Cleveland, sister, Mrs. Edward Siddle of Cleveland.

Mrs. Charles Norman Jones was in a box, and so were Mr. and Mrs. William Decker, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Hillery, Dr. William G. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McCall Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Horace Runney were among the spectators.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammar came with Park Hausman.

Misses: Fred Lehmann, Sears, Lehmann, John S. Blake, Fred Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Alden Little, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kuttig, who had a box, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Potter, Arthur Wear, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Frank, Miss Ruth Leggett with a party of friends, were all interested in the game.

Owen-Brown.
The marriage of Miss Julia Owen and Mr. Frank J. Brown was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Owen, 27 West Washington boulevard, Saturday evening.

White flowers in profusion decorated the house. Miss Faye Johnson served as maid of honor and Mr. Brown had Mr. James T. Pettus as best man.

The bride wore white mousseline with veil and orange blossoms. Bride roses formed the bouquet. Miss Johnson wore white lace over pale pink and carried pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Brown departed for an Eastern journey. They will reside in St. Louis.

Change of Bill at Mannon's.
The Gerty Sisters, in a singing and dancing act, head the new bill put on for the week at Mannon's yesterday. They are a pleasing pair, sweet of voice and graceful of movement, and seemed to make a genuine hit with their audiences. Other features of the vaudeville offering are Pete Baker, formerly of Baker and Parron and "Chris and Lena" fame, in German dialect comedy; Francella and Lewis, operatic singers; Louis and Louis, comedians and hand-balancers; Mexican Herman, magician, and the new Mannonian escape act.

The vaudeville tournament inaugurated by Mannon's management every room in the house will be put on as special attractions for the championship prize medals will be put on as special attraction after the regular performance.

BURGLAR DISORDERS ROOM; HUSBAND THINKS IT'S WIFE Finds His Quarters in Confusion, but Supposes Spouse Was in a Hurry.

By ripping the wire screen from a kitchen door a daylight burglar gained access to the home of Mrs. Ida Duke, 4606 McMillan avenue, between 3 and 4 p. m. Saturday and ransacked nearly every room in the house. The burglar was seen by the wife, who was in the room at the time, and she called to the attention of Mrs. Duke, who was mowing the front lawn at the time.

At 4 p. m., when Robert J. Schultheis returned to his apartments on the second floor, he found the rooms in disorder. Dresser drawers had been removed and their contents scattered about on the floor. The idea of a burglar's visit did not suggest itself to Mr. Schultheis, as he believed that his wife, who had departed an hour previous for a visit to relatives, had in her haste thrown the things about.

Later, when Mrs. Duke asked if anything was missing, Schultheis discovered that his wife's jewelry, a suit of his clothing, his watch and chain and a gold pin were missing.

Helm's Success at Cherokee.
The afternoon and evening concerts by Gustav Helm's orchestra at Cherokee Garden drew good audiences yesterday. There is no doubt that Helm is steadily increasing in popularity, and the programs which he offers are arranged to suit a variety of tastes. Those of yesterday were of the pleasing and much is promised in the way of additional attractiveness throughout the week.

Wall Just Missed Policeman.
Policemen McEneny and Burgoyne of the Carr Street District narrowly escaped death Sunday afternoon when the rear wall of the Runney Manufacturing Co.'s building at 510 North Second street fell into the alley. The policemen were standing near the wall and saw it bulge forward. They ran as it fell. Overloading the fourth floor is said to have caused the collapse. The damage to the building was $1000.

MRS. EDWARD REITZ

SAYS WIFE HE BOUGHT IS A BOY
Gypsy Leader Declares He Gave "Her" Back, but Father Is on Trail.

"Warsaw," king of a gypsy band quartered at San Antonio, Tex., is in St. Louis directing a police search for his 16-year-old daughter, Persia, whom he says eloped with "Elias," leader of another gypsy tribe supposed to be camping in or near St. Louis.

The local police first learned of "Warsaw" about two months ago, when they received a telegram asking them to look for "Elias." The telegram occasioned some mystery owing to its peculiar wording. It was as follows:

"Find Jose Davis and see if he knows where Elias can be found. Warsaw, the father of Persia, is dying."

After considerable deciphering the police concluded that Persia must be a girl who had disappeared from her father's camp. They located a gypsy by the name of "Elias" in a grading camp near West End Heights. "Elias" told the police he had married Persia after paying her father $2000 for her.

He said he later discovered she was a "boy" and gave "her" back to "her" father. The police wired the information to San Antonio. Since then several telegrams have passed between San Antonio and St. Louis relative to the girl, Persia.

Monday morning "Warsaw" called at police headquarters. He was indignant over the story given out here by "Elias," declaring it to be a falsehood. He said "Elias" has three wives and ran away with Persia in spite of the strenuous objection of the parents. He said he must have his daughter back at any cost.

Detectives were assigned to accompany "Warsaw" to several gypsy camps in the West End.

PLUMBERS STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES

Journeymen's Request for $6 a Day Is Refused by Most of the Employers.

HIGHER THAN OTHER CITIES
Men Base Demand on Greater Cost of Living and High Rents Here.

The secretary of the Master Plumbers' Association announced Monday that the journeymen plumbers had carried out their notification that they would strike for $6 a day, an increase of $1, and that only a few shops, employing both union and non-union men, were open. No shops, he said, were paying more than $5 a day.

At the union headquarters, Grand and Easton avenues, it was said that about twenty shops began paying $6 a day Monday, according to the union's demands. At these shops, it was said, 100 men are employed. The remaining 400 union plumbers in St. Louis were idle. There are 130 shops employing union men.

The plumbers base their demand for higher wages than are paid in other cities, it was said at their headquarters, Grand and Easton avenues, on the greater cost of living and higher rents in St. Louis, and on the fact that the union inspects work done by its men, protecting both the employers and the public. This, it was said by union leaders, is not done in other cities.

At a special meeting Friday night the master plumbers agreed not to meet the demand.

In a public statement Sunday they submitted a scale showing that plumbers in New York are paid $5 a day, in Boston $4.40, in Baltimore $4, in Louisville $4, in Indianapolis $3.20 and $4.

The master plumbers expressed willingness to leave the question of wages to a committee of disinterested citizens for arbitration.

The strike which the local union of electrical workers threatened three months ago to call Monday if their demands for increased pay were not granted by the electrical contractors, was prevented by a compromise which was reached Saturday.

The demands of the workmen were for an increase of 70 cents a day and for double pay for overtime work. By the compromise an increase of 50 cents a day was conceded, but double pay for overtime was denied. The increase affects about 300 men, who will now make $5 a day instead of $4.50.

SPECIAL DELIVERY WITHOUT SPECIAL STAMP ON LETTER
New Law Provides 10 Cents in Twos and Fifteens Instruction as Substitute.

The salary of each letter carrier and each postal clerk in St. Louis, now receiving less than $1000 a year, was raised $100 a year Monday by a law passed at the last session of Congress.

Another law passed at the same session, which became effective Monday, makes it easier to transmit letters by special delivery. Heretofore a special delivery stamp was necessary. Now a person may send a letter special delivery by merely affixing ten cents additional postage, 12 cents in all, and writing "special delivery" on the envelope.

The salaries of the railway mail clerks are raised $10 a year and the price of stamped envelopes increased four cents a thousand.

To be brief, this newly established department is designed to be of service to every responsible family in and around St. Louis. In the years that we have been serving the St. Louis public, this grocery business has drawn to itself thousands of fast friends, and their allegiance to the store has been firmly cemented by the application of three principles which very largely govern the conduct of this business.

Fair and Equal Treatment to All.
The Very Best Always at the Lowest Price.
All Errors of Quality Instantly Made Good.

To these three we must now add the important one, "Credit to Responsible People" and we now extend a cordial invitation to all such to make use of this, our latest convenience to the public.

BROWNS BEATEN AND CARDINALS BREAK EVEN

LOCAL FANS DISGRACED BY BLEACHER ROWDIES

No Effort Should Be Spared to Prevent Repetition of Bottle Throwing Indulged in During Sunday's Game With Cleveland.

ST. LOUIS has long enjoyed the reputation of being one of the best baseball cities in the country. Not only has that applied to the box office, but to the manner in which the game has been conducted. In other cities the throwing of bottles, lemons, cushions and other acts of rowdism have frequently marred the sport, but St. Louis has kept out of that end of the game almost entirely—until now.

Yesterday afternoon during the game at Sportsman's Park the crowd in the left field bleachers showed its feeling toward the Cleveland players, who were beating the local team, by throwing a dozen or more soda pop bottles on the diamond in the direction of the closest visiting fielders. Finally, in the ninth inning, it became necessary to stop the game while McAleer and a couple of policemen paid a visit to the stand and quieted down the crowd. No arrests were made.

Affair a Disgrace.

The whole performance was a disgrace and President Hedges should have seen to it that some of the guilty ones should have been arrested, or at least thrown out of the ball park. There is no excuse for a cowardly attack of that sort on visiting ballplayers, and if there is no other way of putting a stop to it, then the sale of a hundred dollars' worth of soda—more or less—could very well be lost by the management and the dangerous bottles kept out of the hands of the mob.

The American League has been particularly clean and free from all exhibitions of this sort and it should not remain for St. Louis to set an example in dirty work.

Will Be Stopped, Says Hedges.

"Such a thing will never occur again in my park," said President Hedges this morning. "In the big crowd which packed the park yesterday it was impossible to get into the bleachers quick enough to catch the rowdies who were throwing the bottles. Hereafter, the game first sign of any such trouble, the game will be stopped if necessary until the unruly men and boys are ejected."

"The fans thought that the Browns were getting the worst of it from the umpires and were worked up, and a few caught the advantage of the situation. It will not happen again, however."

Cardinals Break Even.

While the Browns were being beaten here, 3 to 1, in a double-header yesterday in Cincinnati the Cardinals broke even, winning the first game by a score of 4 to 1, the first game the local National League team has won since they left on their foreign trip. It was Lundy's splendid pitching that won the first game. Beebe and Karger lost the second by a score of 6 to 3.

The showing made thus far of Karger, the Cardinals' first baseman, has been good, and his single yesterday broke in a run. He has fielded his position perfectly and has accepted many difficult chances, both from the bats of the Reds and wild throws from the Cardinals' infielders.

Some Puzzling Plays.

MOUND CITY BARGE CREW WHICH WILL DEFEND STIFEL CUP ON THE RIVER THURSDAY.

MOUND CITY CREW WILL DEFEND CUP THURSDAY

All the Local Rowing Clubs Are Having a Busy Time Preparing for Big Events on the River This Month.

While most of the oarsmen at the different clubs were enjoying themselves either at the opening of the new Century Rowing Club clubhouse or at other festivities yesterday, the entire Mound City championship squad put in a hard day's work, rowing about three miles in the morning and the same distance in the afternoon. The Mound City crew have for the past two years made a clean sweep in almost every rowing race in the vicinity of St. Louis, from junior singles to senior barge races.

Next Thursday the Mound City crew will be called upon to defend the Otto F. Stifel cup, which was contested for the first time last season and won by the Mound City crew. It is necessary to win the trophy three times before it can become the permanent property of any club. The race is two miles down stream, the finish to be at the Mound City Rowing Club, foot of Madison street.

Yesterday morning representatives from the other club were supposed to be present to draw for their positions at the start of the race. None of the clubs were represented, consequently the Mound City crew will have the choice of water. It is expected that every one of the other four local clubs will enter a crew for the race.

Fast Two-Mile Spin. Yesterday morning the junior and senior barge crews went up about a half mile above the bridge. Both crews rowed over the course at about 35 strokes to the minute, a terrific clip for two miles. The juniors had been given a block start, but both crews finished almost together. Most of the men were half groggy when they got out of the boats, but were satisfied both crews went over the course again in the afternoon.

The two crews as they rowed yesterday and will in all probability remain all season as:

Juniors—Fred Wilhelm, bow; Robert Thompson, No. 2; Phil Wolf, No. 3; Arthur Hess, No. 4; Frank Hiltman, No. 5; Fred Spradling, stroke; James Barstow, coxswain.

George Gilbert, a junior single sculler.

ler, was out and showed good form. Harry Floerke, who won the junior single scull championship at the Southwestern Amateur Rowing regatta at Creve Coeur Lake last year, also went up and down the river both morning and afternoon. Emil Floerke is to compete in the junior gig. Joe Lepping, winner of the gig championship last year, will also compete in that event this season.

The senior singles will result in some hot races this year. John L. Joachim of the Westerns, who for years held the Southwestern championship, which he won last season when Herman Kirtman of the North Ends won and Zimmerman of the Quincy, Ill. club finished second, is training again. Joachim intends to try to win this year and then give up the game. Several thousand dollars were won and lost on the single scull race last year at Creve Coeur and at least an equal amount is expected to change hands this season.

Regatta This Month. The S. W. A. R. A. regatta will be held at Creve Coeur for Saturday and Sunday, July 20-21. On July 28 and 29 the first annual regatta of the Central States R. A. will be held at Quincy, Ill. The Mound City delegation of oarsmen and their friends have chartered the steamer Moline and will make a three-day trip to Quincy for the races. The National regatta will be held at Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, on Aug. 9 and 10. The Mound City four will go to Philadelphia, after which the crew will go to the Jamestown Exposition to compete in the International regatta on Aug. 14 and 15. Last season the Mound City four was only kept from winning the national championship by steering slightly out of its course, being unfamiliar with the lake at Worcester, Mass. As it was the local men were only beaten by a few feet. Quite a number of the club members are expected to make the trip to Philadelphia and Jamestown with the crew as a special car will be hired for the journey.

Seniors—Frank Jaeger, bow; Fred Suerig, No. 2; Joe Lepping, No. 3; Oliver Tackey, No. 4; Emile Floerke, No. 5; Charles Amann, stroke; William Hamilton, coxswain.

Juniors—Fred Wilhelm, bow; Robert Thompson, No. 2; Phil Wolf, No. 3; Arthur Hess, No. 4; Frank Hiltman, No. 5; Fred Spradling, stroke; James Barstow, coxswain.

George Gilbert, a junior single sculler.

CROSS RIVER TO SEE BOUTS

Men and Women Make Trip in Small Launch and Are Fooled.

FIGHTS TAME AFFAIRS Sheriff Interferes and Makes Boxers Things Easy All the Time.

Over 150 boxing enthusiasts, among whom were quite a number of women, braved no end of discomfort in the expectation of witnessing three six-round fights at Schwarzenberg's Grove, on the river bank in Illinois opposite the foot of Davis street, 8200 South, last night, only to be badly disappointed when Sheriff Caspar of St. Clair County put in an appearance and allowed the men to box but not to do any earnest work.

Word had been passed around that there was to be some hot fighting across the river Sunday night. The ferry at the foot of Davis street was forced to make an extra and last trip at 7 p. m. A launch was then pressed into service to take the late arrivals across the Father of Waters, which last night was considerably over a mile wide, and the swift current carried along many logs and trees making a crossing in the darkness dangerous.

At the grove a 12-foot ring had been constructed. Men and women occupied seats or stood on chairs. Just as the first pair of men were to enter the ring Sheriff Caspar put in an appearance, having received a tip informing him of the proposed fights, and announced that he would arrest the principals if they fought. He would allow them to fight providing that if they were fighting they would stop at his command.

Joe Edwards and Jim Edwards boxed three light rounds at 125 pounds. The bout was very tame, but one woman created quite a bit of excitement by trying to climb into the ring in her "suits" to wager a $1 bill which she waved tightly clenched in her fist. Referee Johnny Regan kept her out of the ring and her offer to wager was not accepted.

IN OUR SET

BEING LITTLE STORIES OF PEOPLE IN THE SPORT WORLD.

BY FORMAL resolutions the "Passionate Fathers" Society of the M. A. C. has changed its name to "Fashionable Fathers." The new name is most appropriate, for the reason that the members are distinguished for the latest style in dress, as well as for keen discernment in the literary value of the latest books. They are close students of passing events.

THE ANNUAL election of the "Fashionables" will be held shortly, and it is the general opinion among the members that President Walter E. Fritsch will succeed himself by a unanimous vote. Since the organization of the club he has been its guiding head and mainspring.

WE NOTICE in the list of "delightful spots" where one can spend one's vacation Hywel Hurst, Maple Hurst, Fine Hurst, Blue Hurst, Grass Hurst, Gray Hurst, Shady Hurst and Willow Hurst. Tim Hurst evidently does not believe in advertising.

THINK is a lot of water in Wisconsin, but they don't seem to raise oarsmen in it.

THE MOTTO of the graduates of the Hegewisch High School is "Ball on, and on, and on." This is only a slight modification of the rule of life of Hegewisch's most distinguished citizen, which is "Ball in, and in, and in."

A LARGE portion of Mr. Corrigan's string is now quartered at Hawthorne. Now, if Mike Daly would only happen along there would be an excuse to open a real Hawthorne-City Park-Kansas City game.

WITHOUT ANY desire to give that grand old fox, Charles Courtney, any backwash, we would say that good oarsmen make good coaches.

THE JAPANESE invasion is coming in the form of a wrestler who weighs 250 pounds. He must be a whole crowd. It takes a lot of Japs with which we are most familiar to weigh 250 pounds.

OF COURSE racing is possible in St. Louis County. The trouble is there is no one sufficiently game to administer it in its sterilized form until the devotees get acquainted with the sign language.

OUR ADVICE to the hungry and eager horsemen at Latonia and Windsor is to wait until that rumor about the resumption in Chicago is taken up by more polite and reliable society before they pull their freight thither.

IT SHOULD be shrewd for the dope-smith of baseball to "throw out" every third game the Cubs lose from now until the numbers are hung up.

WE HEAR from Western critics that the Eastern turf is badly in need of competent stewards. If that were the case the Western turf need the Western critics would have something more entertaining to write about.

YOU MAY have noticed in the photographs of Richard Croker leading Orby away after winning the Derby that his rugged countenance is wreathed in smiles and that he is caught in the act of lifting his hat as if responding to a salute. If you look a little more closely you will notice that the faces of those who line the avenue through which Orby and his owner are passing are as long as the face of the horse, and that their hands are thrust deeply into the pockets of their six-furlong topcoats. If you listen attentively for a moment you can hear somebody exclaim, "My word! Isn't it a blooming shame?" It is a speaking photograph, indeed it is; and it is now being sold with appreciable aplomb and fairly low prices.

MARK TWAIN'S presence in England may be for the purpose of taking the edge off the gloom occasioned by recent happenings.

GOT HIM going and coming. One Cincinnati paper: E. Corrigan left for Chicago last night. Another Cincinnati paper: Mr. Corrigan returned from Chicago this morning.

WE KNOW of nothing so susceptible of explanation after the fact as a boat race.

IT WAS published in Thursday's papers that Teddy Roosevelt Jr. acted as referee.

MAKING LONG TRIP IN AUTO

Dr. Neville Expected to End Trip From St. Louis to Omaha in Car Today.

Dr. Eugene J. Neville, his son, Elmer Neville, of 404 Morgan street, and Elmer Neville of Omaha, Neb., a brother to Dr. Neville, are expected to reach Omaha, Neb., today in a big automobile touring car that left St. Louis last Friday morning.

Elmer Neville Sr. visited St. Louis last week and while here purchased a St. Louis-made car. Dr. Neville and his son are both enthusiastic motorists and suggested to Mr. Neville that they drive the machine to Omaha instead of sending it by freight. As the car was in fine working order Mr. Neville consented. The distance to Omaha by the roads that the auto will have to pass over is close to 500 miles.

The machine got away to a good start at 6:10 Friday morning and it was expected that the party would arrive at Omaha by this evening at the latest. All three men were to have taken turns driving. Reports of the roads before the start were to the effect that traveling would be good except on some of the Missouri roads.

S.S.S. KILLS THE GERMS OF MALARIA

When the germs of Malaria get into the blood they destroy the rich, nutritive qualities of this vital fluid and reduce it to such a weak, watery condition that it is unable to furnish the system with the nourishment and strength necessary to keep it robust and healthy. The complexion grows pale and sallow, the appetite fails, digestion is deranged, a bilious condition of the system is set up, and often chills and fever make life miserable for the person in whose blood this insidious poison has taken root. There is but one way to rid the system of Malaria and that is to purify the blood of the germs of the disease, and S. S. S. is the remedy to accomplish this. It goes down into the circulation, destroys the germs, purifies and strengthens the weak, watery blood, making it a rich health-giving and health-sustaining stream, and makes a lasting cure of Malaria. Malarial persons will find S. S. S. not only a prompt remedy but a pleasant acting one, as well as certain cure for this debilitating disease. Besides removing the cause of Malaria S. S. S. builds up every part of the system by its fine tonic effects. Book on the blood containing information about Malaria, and any medical advice desired free to all who write. THE SWIFT CURE CO. 50 Years of Growth

The National Bank of Commerce in St. Louis is a half century old this year. Now, with 50 years of steady growth back of it, this bank occupies a place in the very front rank among the great financial institutions of the country.

How it has grown is shown by these decennial figures:

Year	Deposits	Resources
1857	$ 29,387.78	$ 38,226.14
1867	843,373.51	1,265,609.73
1877	1,705,172.56	2,744,519.13
1887	7,342,684.67	9,366,460.31
1897	12,711,200.33	17,629,708.25
1907	60,235,416.62	86,432,179.75

This remarkable growth is due principally to two things, the development of St. Louis and the Southwest, and the able, honorable and progressive management of the institution which has inspired popular confidence in it to a high degree.

Although this is a very large bank, the business of small depositors receives as much consideration as that of larger ones. There is courteous attention to all at this bank. It pays 3% interest on time deposits. Call at the bank or write for more information as to how this great institution can serve you.

ALL READY FOR THE AUTO RACES

Big Cars Will Start in Two Days' Sport at the Fair Grounds.

Old Glory will float gallily to the breeze over the historic old Fair Grounds July 3 and 4, on the occasion of the two days' great auto races. In graceful acquiescence of the nation's independence celebration. If the weather clerk does not become obstreperously recalcitrant in his meteorological dispensations, and the sun shines brightly on these two days, there will be great doings on the beautiful mile course of the dear old Fair Grounds.

The most modern types of the latest triumphs of the auto builders' art will line up in superbly strenuous struggles for world's championship honors in auto contests wherein speed, durability, general reliability and the endurance powers of touring cars, runabouts and racing machines will be determining factors in the results achieved.

The leading auto manufacturers all over America recognize in Missouri a prolific field for touring autos, and the severity of the test in these long distance races will serve as an incentive in securing cars that can set the pace and maintain it against all comers.

Fine Cars to Start.

In consequence thereof, the finest built autos, with all the latest devices for speed and comfort, will be seen piloted by the most skillful and successful drivers in this or any other country, in these races.

Wednesday's program, which will start at 2:30 p. m., will have six highly interesting events. A decidedly attractive feature will be the race for 10 laps between the eight-cylinder car St. Louis built, owned by J. C. Van Arman, president of the National Bank of Commerce, and the greyhound racer Packard build, owned by David R. Alhoun, president of Ely-Walker Dry Goods Co. Great claims are made as the relative speed merits of each car, it is no better time nor place could be selected to determine the much-mooted question of superiority. The outcome of the race will be a "corner," no matter who wins it. The motorists of St. Louis who know the cars and their men, are getting busy backing their horses.

Prescription No. 2851, by Elmer A. Hedges, will not cure all complaints, it will cure rheumatism.

TRIPLE PLAY IN TROLLEY LEAGUE

Grand-Leaders Do Some Fast Work in Game With the White Seals.

A perfect day and a double-header between four teams of the Trolley League was the magnet which tested the seating capacity of Kulaga's Park yesterday afternoon, the large attendance convinced the park management beyond a doubt that double-headers, participated in by first-class semi-professional players, is what the baseball public wants, and from now on it is their intention to schedule as many double-headers as possible. The games were two of the best that have been played in the Trolley League this season, and a continuation of such playing is bound to increase the following of the semi-professionals.

The first contest was a grand one and full of brilliant plays, and went to the White Seals by a score of 2 to 1. The Grand-Leaders played in the usual hard luck and should have won, as Allred, their pitcher, twirled a most brilliant article of ball and until the eighth inning the Seals got nothing that looked like a hit. In that inning Herbert and Meers laid down two perfect bunts. Conney walked and Klingworth, who had got on base through an error, was forced in. At this point Kunkel, shortstop for the Grand-Leaders, was put out of the game for talking back to Umpire Hutchinson, and a switch of players was made. Murphy going to short, Galton to second and McDuffie to center. At this point one of the fastest triple plays ever seen took place. The bases being full, O'Keefe of the Seals hit a high line, which looked good for a home run, but Murphy, at short, leaped in the air and pulled it down.

The younger players are expected to make a good showing in the tournament, although the experts do not give them a chance.

Mrs. E. B. Entz and Mrs. Irwin Hiltz are favorites for first honors, because of the good showing they made in last year's contest.

The courts are in splendid condition, and unless there is another downfall of rain today close battles may be expected.

LADIES BEGIN TENNIS MATCH

Tournament for the State Championship Is Started on the Triple A Grounds.

Despite the soggy condition of the courts at the Triple A grounds, the women's tennis tournament commenced promptly at 10 o'clock today.

Much local interest is being manifested in the result, as it involves the State championship.

Five matches will be played in class "A," and four in class "B," and four matches will also be played in the consolation class.

The regrettable absence from the tournament of Mrs. Charles M. L. Clark and Miss Mimi Garsche leaves the tournament a very open affair.

Game Very Popular. Tennis seems to be more popular in St. Louis this year than ever before, and the present tournament will add to the general interest.

YOUNG CORBETT HERE TONIGHT

Will Be a Side Attraction at Attell-Sullivan Wrestling Match July 4.

Abe Attell, king of the featherweights, and "Brooklyn Tommy" Sullivan, boxing instructor of the Missouri Athletic Club, who, in a fight calling for 124 pounds—two pounds above the featherweight limit—at 6 o'clock, defeated Attell in five rounds before the West End Club Oct. 13, 1904, are carded as the principals in a wrestling bout at the sporting carnival at League Park Fourth of July afternoon.

Boxing is tabooed in Missouri, just like it is in the majority of states. Were Attell and Sullivan able to have it out with the gloves, S. R. O. would be at a premium. Just how they will draw as wrestlers remains to be seen.

Young Corbett arrives from New York at 9:30 Monday night. The former featherweight champion was secured to referee the wrestling bout, but the chances are he will be succeeded by Harry Sharpe.

Sharpe has ranked as St. Louis' leading boxing and wrestling referee for many years. Patron of sport have confidence in him, and as the public may doubt that the set-to on the mat between the two fighters is going to be a bonafide one, with Young Corbett, another fighter, as the third man on the canvas, Harry will probably be named to officiate as referee.

It ought to be easier for railroads to replace rotten ties than to pay damages in lawsuits.

If doctors are arrested for spitting in cars, how are unscientific and unsanitary laymen to be controlled?

With lawyers at the head of the navy and clerks at the head of the army, we shall surely whip all creation.

ELIMINATING THE PASS.

Attorney-General Hadley's reason for demanding of the Missouri railroads that they abolish all State passes is simple and cogent. It is contrary to law to issue such passes. The law on this point has been violated year after year.

When the official passes are all canceled, the worst abuse of the pass system will have been abolished. We say the worst abuse, because the only service that a State officer can offer in return for a pass involves the sacrifice of public to private interests.

But wrong is involved in the entire pass system, because the issuance of a pass to one traveler who does not give a fair return is a discrimination against all passengers who pay their fares. The fare of the pass traveler must be paid by other travelers, and the rates to paying travelers must therefore be higher on account of the pass traveler. Finally, it is only by the abolition of all forms of the pass abuse
that a fair test of the reasonableness of the 2-cent fare can be made. If discriminations are eliminated, all fares can be reduced, and the ideal condition of low uniform rates for all who travel will be realized.

Compliance with Attorney-General Hadley's demand is, therefore, due from the railroad managers not only because State passes are illegal,
but because the abolition of passes is necessary
to a fair test of the new legal rate of fare.

Shooting-cracker permits require that the explosives shall be in front of the applicant's home.
As deafening noises cannot be confined to any front, it is best to escape from the city entirely.

DID WE GET A SQUARE DEAL?

Forty school teachers left St. Louis last week to tour Europe. Other teachers have gone, and still others will follow. Of the whole number of Americans abroad this year, probably three-fourths will be school teachers.

One of our time-honored traditions is that school teachers are underpaid. They are. The average salary for this painstaking and important work is about $45 per 30 days. Yet few school teachers spend the vacation season upon this side of the ocean, a luxury which the rest of us can scarcely afford, if ever.

This state of affairs propounds a question: Did our teachers give us a square deal when we went to school? Was it fair of them to teach us reading, writing and the other R and never let us into the secret of how to live well and still save half of a small income? A school teacher can do that without half trying, and, try as we will, the rest of us can't come within a mile of it. Mere out-looking while these ladies and gentlemen pass in crowds on their way to places we would give our eye-teeth to see forces us to the conclusion that our education was in one respect, at least, neglected: They didn't teach us thrift. They kept this secret to themselves, probably to avoid crowding the boat.

Which is not to be construed as indicating our intention of holding back one whit in the fight for higher wages for school teachers, but is merely calling attention, without malice, to a seasonable phenomenon.

In the very Blue Grass capital itself—ancient and honored Lexington—the saloonkeepers have agreed to get under the lid. Col. Todhunter will scarcely survive this shock.

AN INCIDENT OF BOSSISM.

In reinforcing the plea of "higher law" as a defense for Judge Loving of Virginia, one of his witnesses supports the theory of emotional insensitivity by testifying that "Loving was continuously drunk for four years" and that he had attacks of delirium tremens.

There is something involved of greater importance than the crime for which he is now on trial or than any punishment which could be inflicted on him. It appeared in the question, when the witness was asked on cross-examination how
a man in such a condition could have held office.

Back of that is the question of how a man liable to "emotional insanity" and notorious for his lack of rational habits of self-control could have been put in office.

The answer appears in systematic bossism,
which creates its political machine from men whose qualification is that they will not stop to ask questions when told what to do. Part of the purposes of the machine thus created was to control the public utilities, the power of franchise-giving, of franchise regulating and of eminent domain belonging to the State of Virginia. An incident of this purpose was to make the head of the machine or someone controlled by him, United States Senator from Virginia, with a vote to be used for controlling Tennessee, Arkansas, Texas, Missouri or Kansas should they come into the United States Senate with proposals against what this machine stands for in Virginia, and outside of Virginia, in the Wall street offices of speculators and stock-inflationists.

"Higher law" in the Shaw case and in the Loving case have their common focus which appears as soon as it appears why a man drunk four years, with intermissions of delirium tremens,
could be kept in office in Virginia.

Greenish or grayish tint for sidewalks is recommended by the Missouri Bureau of Geology.
White pavements dazzle, black absorb heat, so do red and brown, but not so much as asphalt. This is important information for all Missouri cities.

BUSINESS AND CRIME.

The plea that John D. Rockefeller ought not to be required to answer a subpoena of the Federal Court at Chicago, because he is an old man
"with many business cares," was made by a Standard-Oil attorney, coincidentally with the publication of a dispassionate article in one of the July magazines illustrating the methods by which such "business cares" have been multiplied.

C. P. Connolly, the author of the review, gives from the public records of Montana a chapter in the long story of desperate crime which belongs to the history of the organization of Montana copper mines as a monopoly by Standard Oil desperadoes.

One of the incidental atrocities of this record of what Mr. Connolly might have called abandoned villainy if he had not restrained himself from the use of epithets, was the attempt to coerce Judge Edward W. Harney.

When a case was to be decided in Harney's court at Butte, on which the plans of the Standard Oil system depended, the agents of the system, getting Harney into a private room, told him that they had affidavits to convict him of felony.
They gave him his choice between accepting $250,000 with these affidavits suppressed, or facing next day the ruin with which he would be threatened, with the affidavits filed in court.

The founder of a system, in carrying out whose plans such methods as this are known to have been used, may have his "business cares" multiplied indefinitely in his old age. But the use of the Federal courts and of all other courts is to draw the line between business and crime
and to keep it drawn for the protection of business against crime.

The weeds have grown so high on vacant lots
that the "No Dumping" signs are out of sight.

THE FAIRBANKS COCKTAIL.

"Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drunk!" Woe unto Charles Warren Fairbanks if he disregarded scriptural warning and served cocktails with a cherry at the luncheon to Theodore Roosevelt at Indianapolis!

The rumor of the Vice-President's guilt has spread like wildfire through the Middle West. Already his chances of election as lay delegate to the Methodist general conference next May are seriously imperiled. Already his fitness to be nominated as a presidential candidate at the Republican national convention next June is solemnly challenged.

Himself a total abstainer, a man whose lips
have never been defiled by any drink stronger than buttermilk, Vice-President Fairbanks stands accused of being the corrupter of youth, of having tempted Theodore Roosevelt and sundry others to taste of the dyed cherry and the cup that cheers.

He has not confessed the charge. President Roosevelt has not confirmed it. But in the meantime the tongue of Temperance is wagging hard.
Unless he proves his innocence at once, Mr. Fairbanks must expect to hear that he has not only sold his soul to the demon rum, but that he has made a deal for the presidency with the saloon voter.

Though the downtown streets are more and more congested and dangerous, St. Louis subways are not even started.

INTERSTATE SWINDLING.

It is certainly as much the business of the Federal Government to check interstate swindling
as it is to regulate interstate commerce.
This view was taken in breaking up the Louisiana lottery and other lotteries, whose system of getting unearned money, though it reached a total of millions annually, was not so gross an offense against business morals and morals in general as the existing system of fraudulent interstate gambling carried on by mail and telegraph from St. Louis, Chicago, St. Paul and other cities.

In spite of State laws, it is likely to be carried on from St. Louis and every other large city so long as it has the use of the mails with its own friendly men in local office to give it the benefit of their apathy in law enforcement.

In the case of the St. Paul bucket shops, the Government now alleges that the mails have been used fraudulently to obtain money under false pretenses. There ought to be no more difficulty in proving this than there was in proving that the "Get Rich Quick" companies of St.
Louis were fraudulent.

In those cases, as was afterward proven, the influence of attorneys of high standing was bought and brought to bear on officials at Washington to influence their action. When it is no longer possible to buy delay thus, the fraudulent system collapsed.

The bucket-shop system, fraudulent in purpose and in results, violates both State and Federal laws through every day of its operation as a system of interstate swindling. It will collapse as an interstate swindle, operating from St.
Louis as a base, as soon as it ceases to have the machinery of the Federal Government available for use in its swindling operations.

To John Wilkes Booth it is of no consequence
whether he is buried in Baltimore or in the ocean,
but the sea story will continue to float in.

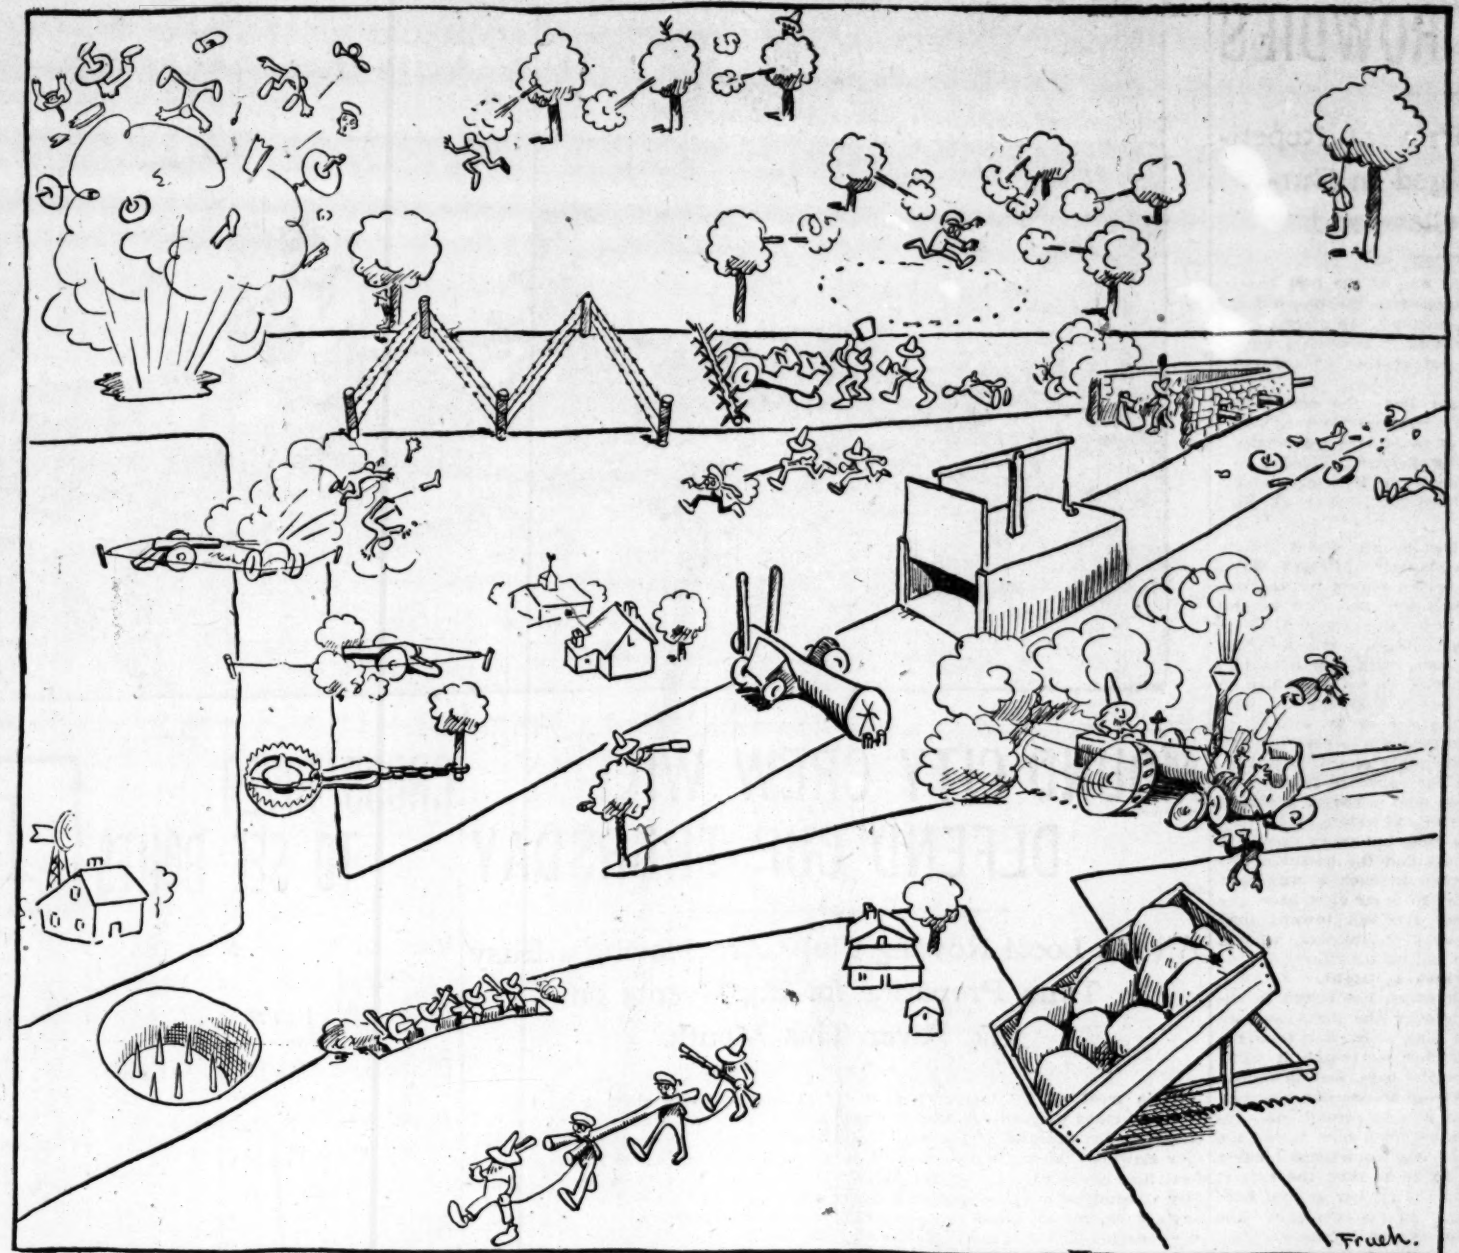

Senator Depew's odorous record as an Insurance statesman is not keeping him from swatting the Democrats.

The private execution at which 200 people are present is somewhat public.

THE WAR ON THE AUTOMOBILES.

When a Post-Dispatch cartoonist read that along Denny road residents have placed piles of rock at intervals, thus precluding scorching, and on other roads logs have been thrown across the highway, and that "two large motor cars, it is said, were ditched near Valley Park Sunday evening," he had a vision as follows:

JUST A MINUTE
WITH POST-DISPATCH
POETS AND HUMORISTS

AN OLD SELF.
(Editor Glyn, an English novelist, says
she is conscious of two former selves.
She was an Athenian in the time of Pericles, and was guillotined in the French Revolution.—News.)

I was Adam. I remember well
The garden that was mine,
The beauty and entrancing spell
Of that fair gift divine,
And the sweet, delicious fruit that fell
From tree and climbing vine.

I remember where a living spring
Gushed softly from the stones
With Lullaby murmuring
And laughter in its tones,
And how the playful wind would bring
The trees with deep, drooping groans.

And Eve! Ah, I remember Eve—
Sweet maid of golden tress,
And how but scarce could I believe
Her real. Nothing less Than dreaming vision could conceive
So much of loveliness.

Your thoughts of Eve are not as mine:
You think of her as old,
The mother of her long, long line—
But ah, her hair was gold,
And ne'er did slim, strong youth incline

In arms so strong to hold.
Sweet Eve, a girl, first of her race,
And such a girl, ah me!
Why, I'll remember her dear face
Through all eternity,
And not in all time, no, nor place
Another such as she.

The fall! Why, no, I never dwell
On that with tears, not one,
But rather yield to that sweet spell
To which my fond thoughts run—
Eve tempted me, sweet Eve, I tell,
As you, too, would have done.

PITCHER WALSH'S APOLOGY.
There is no little indignation among
St. Louis fans over the conduct of Pitcher Walsh of the Chicago White Sox. This unfeeling young man let himself be put out in a game with the Browns last Saturday. He did it so apologetically that the Browns and most of their admirers blushed and were ashamed.

Mayor Wells is ready to acknowledge receipt of Pitcher Walsh's apology any time, now. Baseball is the national game, and it is attended in the national spirit. It should be played in the same spirit. There is no shame in letting yourself be put out, which is decidedly un-American and unworthy of any participant in the national game.

The losing players have a right to be treated as equals until the final score develops that they are not. The speculators are entitled to see them treated as equals. Just because Pitcher Walsh's team happened to be a little ahead, he had no right in the world purposely to end the inning, as if to say "This is all we need to beat these fellows."
That is for us to say, not Pitcher Walsh. He humiliated us as we have no wish to be humiliated, especially when we are paying 25, 50 and 75. He displayed contempt for our baseball team, than which there is no deadlier insult to any American community.

In the days when we had a world's championship team, we never mistreated any other city so.

Mayor Wells' address is the City Hall,
St. Louis, Mo.

The theory that there are safe fireworks will be exploded again this week.

AND THE BABIES GOT A "V."

How the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund Was Benefited Described.
BY BILLY FORTUNE.

WHEN Billy Fortune don't know what's right, he goes and asks a policeman. It's a sight quicker than dragging it out of the dictionary for yourself, and you get it dished up to you in words you know how to spell. It beats all how wise it makes a man to carry a club. They can tell you anything from A to Z, and off the bat. Before I hike back to Wyoming I'm going to buy me one of those clubs to take home with me. I'm tired being so ignorant.

Well, so when I read about this thing in the paper, I reunited up one of those long blue boys on Broadway.

"Say, Beau," I says to him, "is it true about the little babies not having no milk to drink?"

He looked around at me, real sharp. But I've got one of those kind of faces that mean well; so he came across.

"It's true, me son," says he.

"Well," says I, "but where's all the cows? Ain't there anybody in St.
Louis that knows how to milk? What about it?"

He put his hand on my shoulder. "It ain't that, son," he says. "The old town has barrels and barrels of milk, sourin' in the pantries. It's the milk aw away from the city that's the trouble, but him that sets at the head won't pass it along." There was a kind of a far-away look come over his big face. "Have you got any kiddies aw your own?" he asks me.

"Nix!" says I. "If I had, do you reckon I'd be hellin' around here? Not me! I'd be out in the cactus belt, hoppin' 'em up and down on my foot."

I could see his mouth workin' under his mustache. "So you would!" says he.

"The thought does credit to ye, boy. So you would—if they was there. But what if they wasn't? Tell me now, son, how y'd feel if the only way you had was missin'—starved to death in your own bed at home, because ye couldn't get the good milk, you bein' long out of a job in a big, new town. That was me, wanst, seven year ago, just after I'd been laid off with a wagon runnin' over me. It was a little girl, just—"

Right then there was some other kind of a fool asked him a question on the other side of him, and he took his hand off me. I was plumb glad of it. I'd heard a plenty.

I broke away from there, and went on to get my supper.

I'd been thinkin' about that supper, hours and hours, like a man will after he's been cookin' for himself on the ranch. It was goin' to be a hummer, that supper was, in the best place I could find where they'd let me in. I'd spotted the place, along in the middle of the afternoon, and kept walkin' up and down past the window ever since, kind o' teasin' myself with the looks of the truck spread out on the ice, all I knew it by heart. The picture of it came up in my mind again, when I was duckin' away from the policeman.

"Come on, Billy," I says to myself. "Let's go get it now."

"That's me!" says I. "You lead the way, brother. But let's go get something first—a couple of those rich ones, at a quarter a throw."

"Milk!" says I, down under my breath. "They can get it here, can they?
No trouble at all, I reckon." And with that I took my foot down and drilled out into five dollars! A hundred, don't it? A plumb hundred kids bulged full of good milk, for the price of one sick headache! Billy, you ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

Know what I did? I took my little old five bucks and gave it to the babies; and then I poked around to a hurry-up house and climbed up on top of a woolly stool and had me a cup of coffee and a chunk of mother's pie, and went to sleep afterwards as quiet as a baby myself.

That's what comes of askin' fool questions of a policeman.

I believe that the Post-Dispatch is

Keep to the Right.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

What's the matter with the service on the English Garden division of the Hodiadom line? When operated by the St. Louis and Suburban road, no gentleman would put into a bus, and the United Railways Co. have absorbed it, it could not be worse. Like a good many others living within the district of this line, I enjoy visiting Delmar Garden, but it's a case of waiting 20 minutes at Maple and Hodiadom avenues for a car to the Garden, and longer than that for one from the Smokers Abuse Privileges.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Smokers in public are abusing their privileges and becoming selfish and rude. No gentleman will puff tobacco smoke continuously in a neighbor's face. If the victim is a lady, the offense is unpardonable, if the victim be a man he may not smoke himself, or if he does, he may object to a bad cigar or a worse breath. Smoking on crowded street cars or in the reserved portions of grand stands and summer theaters, where ladies go ought to be prohibited. Vice-smelling old pipes and cigarettes, in crowded places are especially objectionable.
Abolish the smoke nuisance—human,
as well as mechanical.

For Negro Politicians.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I wish to call the attention of President Stewart and the Police Board to the desirability of appointing colored men as policemen. Every city in the United States has them, except St.
Louis and New York. Why such a discrimination? Surely they will make as good officers as the foreigners who have come over lately. They give entire satisfaction where employed, and if put on our force, as soon as seasoned, put them down on the levee or on Morgan street—a good test to earn their spurs and maintain themselves. This is a good opportunity to try them and prove the Democratic party of Missouri is unbiased and willing to give every class a chance, and on merit only can they hold their positions.

What Did Your Baby Say?

$5 Five dollars will be paid by the $5 Post-Dispatch for the brightest saying of a St. Louis baby.

INFANTS startle their elders frequently by uttering the most astounding statements. Sometimes they speak words of wisdom, often they show that their undeveloped minds have worked out the funniest sort of conclusions. Your baby has said some bright things which are enjoyed by the family circle; let the readers of the Post-Dispatch enjoy them. To the person sending us the brightest saying of a baby—that means a child under 4 years of age—the Post-Dispatch will pay five dollars. Below will be found bright remarks of St. Louis children contributed by readers of the Post-Dispatch, who think they are entitled to the money. The prize winner will be announced in the next Sunday Post-Dispatch. What did your baby say?

The Lady's Pain.
MY LITTLE brother, Charles, when about 3 years old, was visiting his grandma in Kansas City. Across the street there was a lady who took vocal lessons. One evening, upon hearing her practicing, he went to his grandma and said: "My, that lady must have a big pain, from the way she is screaming."

Found the Feather.
HAVE a little boy 3 years 4 months and 5 days old. About a week ago I came home from work and was reading the evening paper. When he asked me what these plumes were on his face and I said I thought he had chicken pox, nothing more was said and his mother put him to bed. The next morning he came running in and said: "Pa, you ought to be a doctor." I said, "Why?" He said: "You are a good guesser. I have got chicken pox. For I found a feather in my bed."

When the Cake Burned.
SOMETIME ago my sister became greatly excited as to her soul's welfare after a revival meeting. She would sit for hours reading the bible and other religious literature. One day, after placing a long-promised birthday cake to bake for 3-year-old child, she straightway lost herself in the "Millennium Dawn," but was suddenly brought very much to realities by Zora's howls and the smell of the burning cake. The next day, in company with others, the child and I dined out, and she, noticing that the rolls were burned, said, innocently, to our hostess: "Did you read too much Good books, too?"

What You Eat You Are.
E HAD never been accustomed to colored people. Since coming to St. Louis our help have all been colored people. Our girl, 3 years old, has been much interested in them. Quite recently we had a woman for extra help and she talked with little Helen a great deal. After she had gone and no one was talking of colored people, Helen climbed into her mamma's lap, looked very thoughtful for a few minutes, then said: "Mamma, do darkeys eat black bread and butter."

Mamma's Knowledge.
WHEN my little son was 2 years old he thought his mamma knew everything. If anyone would tell him something or ask him questions he would turn to me to answer for him. A little boy was asking him something as usual, he turned to me to answer and the boy, somewhat displeased, said: "Your mamma knows it all." The little fellow, half crying, looked to me and said: "Mamma, duse you know it all?"

He Knew the Facts.
FOR many years we got three daily papers. For some time my youngest boy, Teddy, attended to it that he papers were ready for me when I sat table to read them. At the breakfast table I called for the Globe, at dinner for the German paper and at 3 p. m. Teddy waited for the carrier to set the Post-Dispatch for me. On account of poor contents and simple reprints from other papers I discontinued the German paper. While I didn't miss it, my little 3½-year-old Teddy said one day (in German): "No German paper needed any more. The Weather Bird paper tells it all anyway."

Whence Rain Comes.
MY little girl, aged 3 years, was one day watching a heavy rain storm. After looking a long time at the rain she turned to me and said: "Where does the rain come from?" DEER WEIGHED 147 9-13 POUNDS.

ALL last week the readers of the Post-Dispatch discussed the problem presented to two hunters, who, remote from scales, wished to ascertain the weight of a deer one had slain. Each man knew his own weight, one being 130 pounds and the other 190 pounds. They placed a rail across a fence so that it balanced with one on each end; then they exchanged places, and the lighter man, taking the deer on his lap, the rail again balanced. What was the weight of the deer? That was the question. So many answers were received from readers that it was impossible to print them all, but an effort was made to present one or more good examples of each class among the mathematicians. Very plausible reasons were given for answers ranging from 60 pounds to 9200, but, as 146 persons demonstrated, the correct answer is 147 9-13 pounds.

Here is another problem which is not so difficult and may amuse those who are fond of arithmetic:

A man wishes to take a houseboat from St. Louis to Alton, a distance which we will call 36 miles. He rows the boat 12 miles each day. While he sleeps at night it drifts back 9 miles; how long will it take him to reach Alton.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
This is a problem in leverage, and is difficult only because of a missing factor, which must be assumed. In this diagram

C A B
Let A equal the fulcrum (fence); B equals 130; C equals 190; D equals the distance from A to B; E equals the distance from A to C. When D equals E, the beam is balanced. Assume D equals 6½ feet, then BxD divided by C equals D₂, which gives 447-1/2 as value E. Now, B, or 130, times D, or 6½, equals 845, which, divided by 190, gives 4.447-1/2. Allowing for the result beyond third fraction, 130 times 6.5 equals 845. When the hunters change places (without shifting the rail) the value of B becomes 190 and C becomes unknown. Therefore, by the axiom, B times D, divided by E equals C. Now, 190 times 6.5 equals 1235, which, divided by 4.447-1/2 (E) gives 277.718-1/2 as the value of C. As we know 130 of this is man, 277.718 minus 130 must be deer, so that the deer weighs 147.718-1/2. The -1/2 sign shows that the result is only carried to third place.

A. S. FREDERICKS.
A Natural First Thought.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Weight of men 130 plus 190, or 320. Fence acts as fulcrum for scale beam (x11). Shifting to produce balance changes weight of each man to one-half of 320, or 160 pounds. Heavy man loses, light man gains 30 pounds. Change of places gives heavy man original weight of 190 plus 30, or 220 pounds. Light man only loses as beam 100 pounds. In order to balance heavier man's 220, the deer on lighter man's lap must supply the difference of 120 pounds.
"Quod erat demonstrandum!"
CARL UNGAR.

As It Appears Later.
The weight of the deer was 150 pounds. The following reason:
Combined weight of both men 130 plus 190, or 320 pounds. Fence acts as fulcrum for leverage of rail. By shifting as to balance, each man's weight is changed to 160 pounds. Heavy man loses, light man gains 30 pounds! Change of places results in gain of 30 pounds to heavy man's original weight of 190 pounds. He will now bear down on beam 220 pounds. Lighter man will lose 30 pounds in consequence, and only represent 160 pounds. In order to balance the heavier man's 220 pounds, deer on lighter man's lap will have to supply the difference of 120 pounds plus 30 pounds it loses in weight on short end of beam.

"Quod erat demonstrandum!" C. U.

The Mature Conclusion.
Mathematicians' answer is correct. The deer weighs 147 9-13 pounds. Combined weight of both men 320 pounds. Balanced beam changes weight of each to 160. Changed position gives heavy man additional 30, or total of 190 pounds. Lighter man only represents 130 pounds. The actual weight deer has to supply is 30 pounds in consequence. In order to balance in comparison to its own weight, and has to actually weigh heavy man 160. This is the formula: 7 equals 120 (weight to supply); 120 (reduced weight of man) equals 160 (actual); 160 times 120 equals 19,200; 19,200 ÷ 130 = 147 9-13 (weight of deer). C. U.

What a Woman Thinks.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The solution to the deer problem is simple arithmetic. As follows:
One man weighed 190 pounds and the other 130 pounds, the heavier man weighed 1-13 times as much as the lighter one (divide 190 by 130 equals 1-13). For every one pound on the lighter man's side there must be 1-13 pounds on the other side to make the rail balance. They now reverse positions, the lighter man taking the deer on his lap. Multiply the weight of the heavier man (190) by 1-13, equals 277-13. Subtract the weight of the lighter man (130)—277-13 minus 130 equals 147-13, which is the weight of the deer.

MEETING YOUR FATE

Girls Should Have Proper Opportunity to Find the Right Man, Says This Post-Dispatch Writer.
BY GERTRUDE BARNUM.

DID you ever see a cartoon of the huge girl at a summer resort, promenading with a tiny, bow-legged, bald-headed mannikin? "Some girls didn't get any," her mother is saying consolingly. Looking over the sample beaux paraded by their acquaintances, many a girl and her "chum" secretly congratulate each other upon their "single blessedness." While admitting that not to "get any" is a sad fate—they know of fates even sadder.

All girls have "chums" to talk back upon; and when a working girl says "Rose is my friend," she is speaking of a very special and exclusive bond. As a little forebinder once put it, in speaking of her chum: "I'm hers; she's mine. We are other's each's." If Rose and Stella are "other's each's" no test of friendship is too severe, and their romance may prove a rarely beautiful and comforting relationship and last through a lifetime. However, while fully appreciating their chums, few girls fail to "keep an eye out" for beaux. The great question is where and how to meet them. Any girl is willing to go half way to meet her fate, if she knows the way—or half the way.

One Saturday evening I saw a group of girls going more than half way. They stood on a street corner and the gang of young fellows who loitered near by were all more or less indifferent, though the girls constantly cast sheep's eyes and personal remarks in their direction. If any "fate" was lurking around that corner he surely turned and fled in disgust. No doubt those working girls had taken to the street corner in desperation. Any person of spirit who has toiled like a slave all week rebels at sitting at home on Saturday evening in the "family room" entertaining Aunt Maria and listening to the snore of grandfather. Anyone knows, too, that this sitting room is likely to be a popular place for callers. An enterprising girl looks for pleasure in the week-ends. If there is "any fun going" she does not propose to lie "asleep at the switch."

Since woman's "noblest mission is wifehood and motherhood," it behooves girls to strive mightily to fulfill their destiny. Enterprise they must show; it is a commendable quality. But they must not forget intelligence and good taste. These, too, are necessary in deciding what kind of "fate" to meet, and there to meet him.

The young man who loafs on the street corner is not certain to be a satisfactory Romeo. The gay Lothario of the cheap boarding house would probably prove unreliable as a "steady." The fellow student at night school may be "estimable," but depressing, and the chance acquaintance car conductor or ferryman is likely to put one off at the wrong landing, sadder, if not wiser. I once knew a group of half bedroom girls who got together, rented a flat and made a charming home. Among the articles of furniture they collected were a piano and a chafing dish. Though the flat was on the top floor of an old building, the beaux described it as "within easy walking distance of the street." In the summer they were willing to mount to an improvised rooftop garden on the top of the building, where they said there were "no flies." The details of two weddings were arranged on that roof. In these days there is no excuse for brides who must apologize for the bridegroom. A girl should go forth and meet the right fate in the right way, and no mother should ever have to offer her daughter the scant consolation: "Some girls didn't get any."

He Clearly Sees.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In regard to the deer problem, I clearly see that the deer weighs 260 pounds, and with the 130 pounds makes 390 small man and deer. The rail will still balance. The ratio is 13 to 13, thus 13 is to 19 as 60 is to 87-13.

LIFE AMONG THE JARS.

Do You Recognize the Faithfully Drawn Picture This Post-Dispatch Writer Presents,
BY ROY L. MCGARDELL.

"HERE'S my light suit!" asked Mr. Jarr. "Right in the closet I gave you, hanging up before your eyes!" said Mrs. Jarr. "Now, don't go musing up my bureau drawers. You know your gray suit isn't in there!"
"I was looking for my collars," said Mr. Jarr. "You'll find them in the top drawer of the chiffonier," said Mrs. Jarr. "There're no collars in it," said Mr. Jarr. "There's nothing in it but this tangled bunch of hair."
"Well you never used it for your collars, and that shows how much you appreciate anything I give you, and that leather collar-box cost me four-ninety-eight, which I could have bought something for myself with; but I always think of myself last!"
"What's this hair doing in it?" asked Mr. Jarr. "Now you just let that be!" exclaimed Mrs. Jarr. "It's just a bunch of comings I put in there and forgot. My hair is coming out something terrible. I wish you'd get me something for it!"
"Where are my collars?" asked Mr. Jarr. "You'll find your collars in the top drawer of the chiffonier," said Mrs. Jarr. "Where they are, I suppose I'll have to stop everything and look for them for you!"
"There are none here," said Mr. Jarr, looking in the drawer designated. "I never saw such a man!" said Mrs. Jarr. "You'll be wanting me to dress you next! Here they are, right before your eyes!" and she came over and looked in the drawer. "Well, there were some there the other day," she added, in a lower tone.
"Now you see?" said Mr. Jarr, triumphantly.
"How do you expect to have any collars, when you deliberately tear them up?" asked Mrs. Jarr.
"I have to tear them up when they are all frayed and falling to pieces and tearing at the folds, to keep you from sending them to the laundry again," said Mr. Jarr.
"I knew there weren't any in that top drawer," grumbled Mr. Jarr. "That isn't my fault," said Mrs. Jarr. "I bought you a collar box to keep your collars in, and you won't use it; and I gave you a drawer for your own for your collars and handkerchiefs, and you won't keep them in it!"
"I have so many things to attend to. But you needn't make such a fuss about my using the box. I'll find another place to put them. And as for the top drawer in the chiffonier, I just put a couple of shirtwaists in there when I was unpacking by last summer's things, the other day. I never saw such a house as this; there isn't half a closet enough! If ever I have a house of my own I'll have plenty of closets, and nice big ones, too!"
"All you women think of is tied bathrobes and lots of closets," growled Mr. Jarr.
"I'd have plenty of closet room, only you have to be considered first in this house," said Mrs. Jarr, in reply. "And I gave you the best closet in the house to put your things in! Aren't you going to put on your gray suit? That one you have on needs pressing. I never saw such a man for getting his clothes all out of shape and stained and spotted!"
"I can't find my gray suit," said Mr. Jarr.
"I told you it was in that closet—your closet, that I gave you for your clothes exclusively. It's right there before your eyes!"
"It isn't. There's a lot of your things in this closet," said Mr. Jarr. "There is not. There's nothing of mine in that closet except a couple of skirts and petticoats I put in temporarily, and some of my winter clothes that I intend to pack away if the weather will ever get warm! Let me look!"
"There's no clothes of mine in there!" sneered Mr. Jarr.
"How can you say so?" said Mrs. Jarr, in a pained tone. "Here's your bathrobe, that I have been wearing since it got too small for you, and here's a white waistcoat of yours I forgot to send to the laundry!"
"Where's my gray suit?" demanded Mr. Jarr.
"Oh, I forgot," said Mrs. Jarr. I sold it to an old-clothes man the other day. It was all frayed and worn."
"Well, where's my blue necktie?" asked Mr. Jarr.
"I was going to wear it," said Mrs. Jarr. "It isn't becoming to you at all."

Magazine Fiction While You Wait, if You're Willing to Wait, Devised for the Post-Dispatch
BY ARCHIBALD FULSOME.

"I AM all soul and life is so sordid." The speaker was a fair girl. Her features were not what a poet would call delicately checked. The job was such as the janitor might do with a cold chisel. Her cheeks were still pink—she never neglected putting on the pink. No basal ever was as basal as her eyes.
"Ah, I am so full of soul it gives me a pain," she murmured.
Bessey Hornblunder had cause indeed to sigh. She abhorred the material things of life. Yet, with such a temperament as here—and it was chronic—she had linked her in wedlock to a man who engaged in sordid work. True, she enjoyed spending the money he made; her temperament demanded the beautiful and the expensive.
"But," she said to herself, "he might get the money by means less sordid than work."
She was sitting on an expensive and fashionable beach. Adelbert Bleauhard approached her. Adelbert also had a temperament, though his father was in trade, being president of the Rat Trap Trust.
"Does your temperament pain you today?" he asked, tensely, his gaze fastened on the distance.
She shuddered.
"The world is so sordid," she exclaimed.
Adelbert gnawed his silver-headed walking stick.
"You need a larger sphere," he murmured, huskily.
Enthusiasm swept across her mobile—her Mobile and Ohio face.
"I have it," she cried triumphantly, "I will move to Chicago. Chicago is so stimulating!"
Adelbert escorted Bessey to her hotel. Both realized she had lived up to her temperament. They parted at the hotel door. Adelbert strolled through the woods toward his own hostelry. The air was like wine. He swallowed more than was good for him and became dizzy.
Ziss-hic-ish my-hic-sphere!" he said drowsily, and reeled to a mossy bank, where he fell asleep.

GIRL KILLED IN A SCUFFLE FOR REVOLVER

Weapon Purchased by Young Man Was Supposed Not to Have Been Loaded.

BULLET IN HER HEART

Sweetheart's Mother in the Room at the Time the Fatal Shot Is Fired.

During a friendly scuffle for the possession of a revolver that was supposed not to be loaded Barbara Alleb Harr, 15 years old, was shot through the heart Sunday afternoon. Her fiancé, Silas Ashworthy, 17 years old, was the owner of the weapon and the other party to the scuffle.

Both live near Fireworks Station, adjoining East St. Louis. Ashworthy gave himself up to Constable Barney Williams and was placed in the East St. Louis Jail pending the Coroner's inquest.

Ashworthy had bought the revolver for 75 cents from a pawnbroker, and it was lying on a dresser in his room Saturday. The young man and the girl, accompanied by Mrs. Ashworthy, were in the room. The girl picked up the weapon and Silas tried to get it away from her.

Suddenly the girl sank to the floor, exclaiming, "You've shot me." She died immediately.

EAST SIDE CHURCH SEEKS SUNDAY "LID" BY MANDAMUS

Methodists Ask Co-Operation of Business Men in Forcing Action by Mayor Cook.

A writ of mandamus to compel Mayor Cook of East St. Louis to close the saloons on Sunday is the step contemplated by prominent Methodists of that city. They are asking for the co-operation of business men.

The idea was suggested Sunday by Rev. John F. Harmon of the first Methodist Church. After the meeting Milo Clannahan started out with a petition that calls for the commencement of court proceedings. He said he found the sentiment strongly in favor of action to carry out the Sunday closing law.

Rev. Mr. Harmon in the last issue of his paper, the East St. Louis Advocate, called attention to the ability Mayor Cook showed a year ago to close the saloons.

Mr. Harmon, in his sermon, also spoke of the power given by the School Board to an application to have the Bible read in the public schools, and permission was refused the Methodists of Lansdowne to use temporarily the school building for service, when a similar request from Mormon evangelists was granted.

The president of the School Board seemed to consider it all right to allow an all-night dance in a school building. This was the reference to the Alumna Association annual.

ST. LOUIS A MINT IN CLAY

Valuable Deposits In and About City Reported by Surveyors.

That valuable clay mines which have never been prospected nor discovered are to be found in and about St. Louis is an opinion set forth in a survey made recently by a member of the United States Geological Survey. St. Louis now produces one-third of the clay output of the product in the United States and the annual sale amounts to more than $5,000,000. The present area from which the clay is mined has its center in a section of the city known as Cheltenham, south of Forest Park.

A large quantity of the clay mined in St. Louis is sold for glasshouse use. This is the best quality mined. Other grades are used in making faced brick, piping and common red brick. Just east of Creve Coeur Lake is another mine of valuable clay and it is due to the wide separation of the two districts that the geological expert bases his opinion that other locations rich in the product exist and have not yet been found.

THE BROWN SHOE CO.
Gain in Shipments.

The Brown Shoe Company reports a gain in shipments for the month of June over June, 1906, of $20,000. The rapid pace at which this firm is growing is indicated by these monthly gains and they report a much heavier per cent of gain on their higher grade specialties than on general sales.

MEXICAN REPUBLIC PLANS BLOW AT STREET BEGGARS

Federal Commission Is to Be Appointed and Able-Bodied Must Work.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 1.—A special to the Express from Saltillo, Mexico, says:

A plan to rid the sidewalks and public gardens of the street beggars is under advisement by the Federal authorities of Mexico. A commission is to be appointed to investigate the matter. It is the intention to compel all able-bodied men who are found begging to learn some trade by which they can make a living. Already there is a law in Mexico restricting those found begging to certain days.

FRANCIS MURPHY, NOTED TEMPERANCE LECTURER, DEAD

Expires at Home of His Daughter in California After Lingering Illness.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 1.—Francis Murphy, the noted apostle of temperance, is dead. The end came peacefully yesterday at the residence of his daughter in this city, where for three weeks he had been ill.

For more than a week all hope of recovery had been given up and the one effort which physicians made was to sustain life until members of his family could reach here from the East. The immediate cause of death was diabetes.

At his bedside were his devoted wife and his son, Thomas Edwin Murphy of Philadelphia. Lieutenant-Governor Murphy of Pennsylvania and another son are expected to arrive tonight.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother, bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain. Sold at $1.00 per bottle by druggists. Our book of priceless value to all women sent free. Supply Your Wants for Months to Come
While the saving chances are so pronounced.

WHAT does saving mean to you? Putting away a little money once in a while when you happen to feel like it?

That is the idea a good many of us have, but it is not the right one. Spasmodic saving accomplishes little. Be systematic and save with a definite object in view—such as owning your home, getting an education, going into business or to become financially independent.

Then be sure that your savings are safely and profitably at work for you.

The Missouri-Lincoln Trust Company has capital and surplus of more than $4,000,000. It is strong, conservative and reliable. On savings accounts it pays 3% interest, compounded semi-annually.

Savings Department open Mondays until 8 p. m. Take the first step on the road to business success by starting a savings account with this strong institution at once.

We Say—Try Temtors Entirely at Our Risk

Taste the exquisite flavor of the freshly picked fruit, the perfect kind that you would choose for your own preserving. The pick of the orchard preserved in the purest of granulated sugar, in our spotless, modern kitchens. You will find Temtors always wholesome, satisfying and delicious.

The freshness is retained by our Vacuum Process of packing.

In Vacuum Sealed Jars

so that Temtors on your table are as fresh as when they left our kitchen. No air is left on the top of the jar to cause the fruit to "work" or ferment.

The Vacuum Seal draws off the air and keeps it off. Temtors will "keep" indefinitely. Every grocer will refund your money if you don't like Temtors. You can taste, besides blackberry—cherry, strawberry, red raspberry, plum or peach Temtors—and money back if you say so.

Your grocer has three sizes for your choosing.
